1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Nothing in the State’s briefing alters this Court’s earlier, well-reasoned 3 conclusion: AB 290 does not pass constitutional muster. Despite the two-year pause, 4 ample opportunities for discovery, and multiple rounds of briefing, the State has not 5 identified any facts that could justify AB 290. Indeed, the State has not presented a 6 single example of the supposedly “well documented” problem that AB 290 purports to 7 remedy. Instead, the State has simply recycled the same speculation and arguments that 8 it unsuccessfully advanced during the preliminary injunction briefing.

9 The State’s failures are inexcusable given the life-threatening stakes for many of 10 California’s most vulnerable end-stage renal disease (“ESRD”) patients. AB 290 serves 11 no legitimate purpose and, if it goes into effect, thousands of patients will be harmed.
12 But there is no reason the Court should let that happen because there are no genuine 13 disputes over the facts necessary to decide this case. The Court has already 14 preliminarily determined that AB 290 violates the First Amendment, and the State has 15 come forward with no evidence or arguments that could change that determination. In 16 addition, AB 290 creates an irreconcilable conflict with federal law and the State has 17 come forward with no evidence that could resolve that conflict. Accordingly, Plaintiffs 18 respectfully request that the Court grant their Motion for Summary Judgment and deny 19 the State’s Motion for Summary Judgment.

20 II. ARGUMENT

21 A. The Factual Record Has Not Meaningfully Changed Since this Court 22 Preliminarily Enjoined AB 290.

23 When the Court preliminarily enjoined AB 290, it carefully reviewed the State’s 24 justifications for the statute’s intrusions on Plaintiffs’ constitutional rights and 25 “question[ed]” whether the harms AB 290 purported to remedy were “real.” Doe v.
26 Becerra, Nos. SA CV 19-2105-DOC-ADS, SA CV 19-2130-DOC-ADS, 2019 WL
27 8227464, at *5 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 30, 2019). The Court pointed out that “the State h[ad] 28 yet to identify a single California patient steered into a private insurance plan by a

1 dialysis provider or third-party payer.” Id. The State was similarly unable to offer any 2 evidence that the California health insurance pool had been, or was going to be, 3 distorted. Id. “If these harms were real, rather than speculative or conjectural, the State 4 . . . would already understand and be able to demonstrate these economic effects.” Id.

5 The Court further held that AB 290 was not properly tailored. Instead of AB 6 290’s vague and overinclusive Steering Ban, the State could have relied on existing 7 antifraud laws or boosted efforts to educate patients about their insurance options. Id.
8 at *6. And instead of the Reimbursement Cap, which penalizes association with AKF, 9 the State could have “directly regulat[ed] insurance rates.” Id. at *8. At core, the Court 10 recognized that the State could not justify AB 290 with “mere speculation or 11 conjecture”; instead, the State had to “demonstrate that the harms it recites are real 12 and that its restriction[s] will in fact alleviate them to a material degree.” Id. at *5 13 (quoting Edenfield v. Fane, 507 U.S. 761, 770–71 (1993)).

14 The State has not met that burden. Instead, the undisputed facts underscore that 15 the Court’s preliminary conclusions were correct and that the State has no justification 16 for AB 290. Significantly, the State does not dispute the tragic nature of end-stage renal 17 disease (“ESRD”) or that dialysis is a critical, life-saving treatment for ESRD patients.
18 See Defs.’ Response to Pls.’ Statement of Uncontroverted Facts ¶¶ 1–17, Dkt. 153-5 19 (“State RSUF”). Nor does the State dispute the devastating impact of ESRD on 20 Plaintiffs Jane Doe and Stephen Albright’s lives or that AKF’s Health Insurance 21 Premium Program (“HIPP”) has helped Plaintiffs (and other very sick dialysis patients) 22 maintain their insurance. See State RSUF ¶¶ 21–29, 32–39. The State also does not 23 dispute that Medicare and other forms of public insurance may not be appropriate for 24 all patients and their families. See State RSUF ¶¶ 53–56, 58–60, 62–63.

25 Nor does the State contest most of the facts of HIPP’s function or purpose. It 26 does not dispute that HIPP supports thousands of low-income, minority, and uniquely 27 vulnerable dialysis patients in California. See State RSUF ¶¶ 66, 69–71, 76–77. There 28 is also no dispute that dialysis patients already have insurance when they apply to HIPP.

1 See State RSUF ¶¶ 73–74.¹ Likewise, there is no disagreement that AKF does not help 2 patients find new insurance and does not advocate patients keep or switch their existing 3 insurance. State RSUF ¶ 78.

4 The parties also agree in many material respects about the scope and status of 5 Advisory Opinion 97-1 and AB 290. See State RSUF ¶¶ 89–98, 99–101, 104–105. In 6 particular, the State agrees that the Department of Health and Human Services “has 7 never alleged or determined that AKF has operated HIPP out of strict compliance with 8 Advisory Opinion 97-1.” State RSUF ¶ 98. The State also agrees that “[i]f HIPP were 9 to materially deviate from practices described in Advisory Opinion 97-1, then AKF 10 would lose its safe-harbor protection.” State RSUF ¶ 97. And the State agrees that 11 California enacted AB 290 to address the purported problem of patients being 12 “steer[ed]” onto commercial insurance plans against patients’ best interests. State 13 RSUF ¶ 100.

14 The parties’ agreement on these facts is unremarkable. What is remarkable is the 15 State’s continued inability to produce any concrete, reliable evidence of patient 16 steering—the evil AB 290 purports to address. Nowhere does the State identify even 17 one California patient who has been steered. To the extent the State offers any support 18 for its allegations of “steering,” it is cobbled together from snippets of self-interested 19 insurance company allegations, a few newspaper articles, a passing remark in an AKF 20 manual, and unproven allegations in securities complaints. See AKF Br. 12–14; AKF 21 Opp. 8–11. Even if the Court were to accept such “evidence,” it remains the kind of 22 “mere speculation or conjecture” that this Court properly rejected during the 23 preliminary injunction phase. Doe, 2019 WL 8227464, at *5 (quoting Edenfield, 507 24 U.S. at 770–71).

26 ¹ The State contests that “HIPP applicants select their health insurance with no input 27 from AKF,” Dkt. 153-5 ¶ 74 (Defs.’ Response to Pls.’ Statement of Uncontroverted 28 providers, Dkt. 155-2 ¶ 50 (Plaintiffs’ Statement of Genuine Disputes of Material Fact).

1 In short, the State’s case offers no reason for the Court to change its views 2 regarding the constitutional infirmities of AB 290. The undisputed facts confirm that 3 AB 290 intrudes on First Amendment rights without lawful justification. It is therefore 4 invalid and should be struck down.

5 B. AB 290 Violates the First Amendment.

6 In addition to its failure to bring forward any facts that could support its position, 7 the State also continues to rely on meritless legal arguments. None of its arguments are 8 sufficient to defend AB 290’s intrusions on AKF’s First Amendment rights. See AKF 9 Br. 8–19; AKF Opp. 2–16; Doe, 2019 WL 8227464, at *4–9.

10 1. AB 290 Violates AKF’s Right to Free Speech.

11 AB 290 violates AKF’s free speech rights under any level of First Amendment 12 scrutiny.

13 a. AB 290’s Content-Based Speech Restrictions Are Subject to Strict 14 Scrutiny.

15 AB 290 contains “presumptively unconstitutional” content-based speech 16 regulations that are subject to “strict scrutiny.” AKF Br. 8–12; AKF Opp. 3–7.
 17 Regulations are “content based” when they “appl[y] to particular speech [due to] the 18 topic discussed,” Reed v. Town of Gilbert, 576 U.S. 155, 163 (2015), or “[m]andat[e] 19 speech that a speaker would not otherwise make,” Riley v. Nat’l Fed’n of the Blind of 20 North Carolina, Inc., 487 U.S. 781, 795 (1988). AB 290’s provisions target a 21 disfavored group of speakers (AKF and dialysis providers), tell them what they can and 22 cannot say, and compel AKF to speak when it otherwise would not.² These are all 23 canonical examples of content-based speech regulations. See AKF Opp. 3–4 (collecting

24 _____
 25 ² See AB 290 §§ 3(b)(4) & (5)(b)(4) (prohibiting AKF from “steer[ing], direct[ing], or 26 advis[ing]” any patient “into or away from a specific coverage program option or health 27 care service plan contract”); id. §§ 3(b)(3) & 5(b)(3) (compelling AKF to inform 28 patients of “all available health coverage options”); id. §§ 3(c)(1) & 5(c)(1) (requiring AKF to provide an annual statement to health care service plans); id. §§ 3(c)(2) & 5(c)(2) (requiring AKF to disclose HIPP patient names to health insurers).

1 cases). And it is black-letter law that strict scrutiny applies to such restrictions. E.g., 2 Reed, 576 U.S. at 163; R.A.V. v. City of St. Paul, 505 U.S. 377, 395 (1992); Simon &
3 Schuster, Inc. v. Members of N.Y. State Crime Victims Bd., 502 U.S. 105, 115, 118 4 (1991). The State must therefore show that AB 290’s restrictions “are narrowly tailored 5 to serve compelling state interests.” Reed, 576 U.S. at 163.

6 In response, the State argues that intermediate scrutiny applies because AKF 7 engages in “commercial speech.” State Opp. 8–9. But AKF’s speech—carried out 8 entirely in a charitable context—is not “commercial” in nature. AKF Br. 11–12; AKF 9 Opp. 5–7. Nor does it satisfy any of the criteria for “commercial speech” under Bolger.
10 AKF’s speech is not an advertisement, AKF’s speech does not “refer[] to a particular 11 product,” and AKF does not have an “economic motivation.” Hunt v. City of Los 12 Angeles, 638 F.3d 703, 715 (9th Cir. 2011) (citing Bolger v. Youngs Drug Prods. Corp., 13 463 U.S. 60, 66–67 (1983)).

14 While the State concedes that AKF’s speech is not an advertisement, it asserts 15 that the Advising Restriction “meets the latter two Bolger factors.” State Opp. 8. But 16 none of the State’s arguments speaks to whether AKF’s speech “refers to a particular 17 product.” Hunt, 638 F.3d at 715; State Opp. 8–9. And the State’s purported “evidence” 18 of AKF’s “economic motive” has nothing to do with AKF. See State Opp. 9 (discussing 19 “[dialysis] providers’ bottom line” (emphasis added)). AKF is a charity focused on 20 addressing kidney disease—its speech does not refer to any particular product and is 21 not driven by any economic motivation. To the extent the State renews its argument 22 that AKF “promote[s]” “commercial insurance,” State Br. 14, the record conclusively 23 shows otherwise, see AKF Opp. 5–6. Less than one third of California HIPP patients 24 are covered by commercial insurance plans. Dkt. 132-19 (Burton 2022 Decl. ¶ 26).
25 Moreover, HIPP patients arrive with insurance already in hand, and AKF provides no 26 input to HIPP applicants about their insurance choice. See SUFCL ¶¶ 74, 78; see also 27 Dkt. 132-19 (Burton 2022 Decl. ¶ 23) (explaining AKF leaves “critical choices” about 28 patients’ insurance coverage in “patients’ hands”).

1 The State also argues that AB 290’s disclosure provisions are permissible 2 because they compel the disclosure of only “purely factual and uncontroversial” 3 information. State Opp. 17–20 (citing and quoting Zauderer v. Office of Disciplinary 4 Counsel of Supreme Court of Ohio, 471 U.S. 626, 651 (1985)). This argument fails 5 because AKF’s speech is not “commercial” and therefore not within that narrow band 6 of regulation. See supra at 5; AKF Opp. 5–7. In any event, AB 290 does not mandate 7 the disclosure of only “purely factual” and “uncontroversial” information. As AKF has 8 already explained, AB 290 requires AKF to (1) deliver a state-preferred message it 9 otherwise would not communicate, because AKF does not discuss insurance options 10 with HIPP beneficiaries at all; (2) certify its compliance with unconstitutional 11 requirements to insurers; and (3) disclose the names of HIPP beneficiaries to insurers.
12 See AKF Opp. 7. These disclosures are all “controversial.” See id. The State has no 13 meaningful response to these basic points.³ Thus, AB 290’s content-based restrictions 14 are subject to strict scrutiny.

15 b. AB 290 Fails Under Any Level of Scrutiny.

16 In any event, AB 290 does not survive under any level of scrutiny because the 17 State has no evidence of inappropriate patient “steering,” the purported problem that 18 motivated AB 290’s enactment. See supra at 3; AKF Br. 12–14; AKF Opp. 8–11. The 19 State’s attempt to explain why AB 290 is properly tailored consists of a single 20 conclusory sentence. See State Opp. 9; State Br. 15. Nothing in the State’s briefing 21 disturbs the Court’s conclusion that AB 290’s speech restrictions cannot pass muster.
22 See Doe, 2019 WL 8227464 at *4–8.

23 _____
24 ³ The State argues that AKF already discloses patient names through its “preferred” 25 method of paying HIPP grants. State Opp. 17 n.13. Contrary to the State’s assertion, 26 paying HIPP grants directly to insurers is not AKF’s “preferred” method of payment.
27 Pls.’ Respond to Defs.’ Add’l Stmt. of Facts ¶ 85. Moreover, there is a wide gulf 28 between AKF disclosing select patient names to select insurers to achieve its charitable mission and being compelled to disclose every patient to every private insurer. AB 290 compels AKF to speak when it otherwise would not. See supra at 4–5; see also infra at 9–11 (explaining disclosure requirements violation AKF’s rights of association).

1 In its Opposition, the State’s primary tactic is to regurgitate immaterial 2 “evidence” that is not meaningfully different from what the State pleaded during the 3 preliminary injunction phase. See State Opp. 9–12, 13–14. That evidence is insufficient 4 to carry the State’s burden. As AKF has shown, the State’s evidence of steering—5 public comments from an enjoined CMS rule, an out-of-state investigation into the 6 conduct of a single employee of a dialysis provider, a smattering of news articles, and 7 mere allegations in securities complaints—proves nothing. See supra at 3; AKF Opp.
8 9–10. Most of these materials are facially irrelevant to AKF, a point the State implicitly 9 concedes. See State Opp. 19 n.14 (acknowledging AKF is not “part of th[e State’s] 10 discussion” of evidence). Even if the State’s “evidence” concerned AKF, it is 11 inadmissible hearsay and, at most, amounts only to “anecdote and supposition” 12 insufficient to justify restrictions on AKF’s First Amendment rights. AKF Opp. 9–10; 13 United States v. Playboy Entm’t Grp., Inc., 529 U.S. 803, 822 (2000). The State’s 14 “evidence” of patient harms and rising health care costs is likewise deficient. See AKF 15 Opp. 10–11 (explaining State’s admitted lack of evidence and flaws in the State’s expert 16 reports).⁴ Despite having two-and-a-half years and two summary judgment briefs to do 17 so, the State still has not come forward with any credible evidence that AKF has 18 “steered” any dialysis patients (or caused any other harm).

19 In a footnote, the State argues that it is “not confined” to AB 290’s legislative 20 record. State Opp. 10 n.8. Yet the State ignores that it must have a basis for restricting 21 speech before it enacts speech restrictions. IMDB.com, Inc. v. Becerra, 257 F. Supp.
22 3d 1099, 1102 (N.D. Cal. 2017), aff’d, 962 F.3d 1111 (9th Cir. 2020) (holding state 23 could not “[r]estrict speech first and ask questions later”). Here, the Legislature enacted 24

25 _____
26 ⁴ The State, citing nothing, asserts that “cost savings” will “flow naturally” from a 27 “healthier [insurance] risk [pool] mix” and faults AKF for not disproving this bald 28 assertion. State Opp. 14 n.12. But it is the State’s burden to “justify[] the challenged restriction.” Greater New Orleans Broad. Ass’n, Inc. v. United States, 527 U.S. 173, 183 (1999). The State has no evidence that AB 290 will reduce health care costs. See AKF Br. 14; AKF Opp. 10–11.

1 AB 290 based on no reliable evidence. See supra at 3. Such “evidence” is plainly 2 insufficient to carry the State’s burden to show that it has a substantial interest in 3 imposing content-based restrictions on speech, and no after-the-fact evidence presented 4 by the State remedies this defect. E.g., Playboy Entm’t Grp., 529 U.S. at 822 (finding 5 a “handful of complaints” insufficient in light of “near barren legislative record”); 6 IMDb.com Inc. v. Becerra, 962 F.3d 1111, 1125–26 (9th Cir. 2020) (finding a “single, 7 anecdotal account” in a news article and “generalized” statistics insufficient).

8 The State does not contest its failure to identify a single patient “steered” by AKF 9 (or anyone else) into a commercial health insurance plan. See State Opp. 12; SUFCL 10 ¶¶ 107, 116, 123; see also SUFCL ¶ 109 (no steps taken to identify “steered” patients).
11 It instead deflects and makes excuses, asserting that its representatives “never purported 12 to have firsthand knowledge of steering.” State Opp. 12. Setting aside the troubling 13 nature of this admission, the State’s witnesses are Rule 30(b)(6) representatives of the 14 departments tasked with enforcing key provisions of AB 290. See AB 290 §§ 3(b)(4), 15 5(b)(4); Cal. Health & Safety Code §§ 1346(a), 1387, 1390–92; Cal. Ins. Code 16 § 12928.6(a). Their failure to “identify a[ny] victim of steering” does, in fact, “suggest 17 that the State . . . lacked sufficient evidence” when it enacted the statute. State Opp. 12 18 (internal quotation omitted). The State also argues that it is “not required” to provide 19 examples of “steered” patients. Id. But the State “must demonstrate that the harms it 20 recites are real[.]” Doe, 2019 WL 8227464, at *5 (quoting Edenfield, 507 U.S. at 770– 21 71). Because the State, even now, “has yet to identify a single California patient steered 22 into a private insurance plan,” that is strong evidence that “the[] recited harms are [not] 23 real.” Id.; see also Playboy Entm’t Grp., 529 U.S. at 822.

24 There is no merit to the State’s half-hearted suggestion that AB 290 is the “least 25 restrictive” means of addressing “steering.” See State Opp. 14–15. The State faults 26 AKF for not explaining why alternatives to AB 290 “would effectively address 27 steering.” Id. at 14. But that attempt to shift the burden only underscores the utter 28 weakness of the State’s position. “It is the [State’s] burden to prove that [its] specific 1 restrictions are the least restrictive means available[.]” Askins v. U.S. Dep’t of 2 Homeland Sec., 899 F.3d 1035, 1045 (9th Cir. 2018) (emphasis added). The State 3 asserts a “narrower [steering] ban” would “risk allowing some of these [methods of 4 steering] to continue unabated,” State Opp. 14, without explaining what “methods” 5 would “continue,” or how, or why. Likewise, the State’s conclusory assertion that “state 6 anti-fraud laws” are insufficient rings hollow. E.g., Riley, 487 U.S. at 795 (“North 7 Carolina has an antifraud law, and we presume that law enforcement officers are ready 8 and able to enforce it.”); see also Doe, 2019 WL 8227464, at *6 (“[T]he State could 9 rely on antifraud law to protect patients . . .”). The State also fails to explain why 10 “increas[ing] its own educational efforts” would be inadequate. Id. And in any event, 11 there is no evidence that the State “explored, or even considered” any less restrictive 12 alternatives before enacting AB 290. IMDB.com, Inc., 962 F.3d at 1125.

13 2. AB 290 Violates AKF’s Rights of Association.

14 AB 290 also violates AKF’s First Amendment rights of association. See AKF 15 Br. 14–17; AKF Opp. 12–14. The statute burdens association between AKF and its 16 donors, requires AKF to alter its very mission of combatting kidney disease in 17 California, and mandates that AKF reveal the name of every single California HIPP 18 beneficiary to private insurance companies. AKF Br. 14–17; AKF Opp. 12–14. In 19 response, the State rereads already-discredited arguments, attempts to rewrite the 20 statute, or else ignores AKF’s arguments entirely.

21 First, AKF has shown that the Reimbursement Penalty violates the First 22 Amendment because it “operat[es] as [a] disincentive[.]” for association between AKF 23 and many of its 80,000 donors. AKF Opp. 13 (quoting Simon & Schuster, Inc., 502 U.S.
24 at 115, 118). The State’s primary response is to, yet again, claim that AKF has no right 25 to “amass funds.” State Opp. 16–17 (quoting Interpipe Contracting, Inc. v. Becerra, 26 898 F.3d 879, 892 (9th Cir. 2018)). Endless repetition does not make this argument any 27 more persuasive. The case from which the quote is taken, Interpipe, is inapposite 28 because the statute in that case did not “prevent[] employers . . . from contributing to 1 [the plaintiff].” 898 F.3d at 891, 893. Here, the Reimbursement Penalty is designed to 2 penalize dialysis providers from donating to AKF. AKF Opp. 13. The State offers no 3 reason for this Court to revisit its conclusion that this punitive arrangement burdens 4 charitable donations in a constitutionally significant way. Doe, 2019 WL 8227464, at 5 *6.

6 Second, AKF has shown that sections 3(b)(2) and 5(b)(2) of AB 290 violate the 7 First Amendment because they require AKF to “agree not to condition financial 8 assistance on eligibility for, or receipt of, any surgery, transplant, procedure, drug, or 9 device,” thus requiring AKF to abandon its central mission of combatting kidney 10 disease. AB 290 §§ 3(b)(2), 5(b)(2) (emphasis added); see also AKF Br. 16; AKF Opp.
11 13–14. The State’s response is an attempt to rewrite the statute. The State asserts that 12 the provisions merely “address[] certain practices” listed in AB 290’s legislative 13 findings, such as “the withdrawal of premium assistance when a patient receives a 14 kidney transplant.” State Opp. 17 (citing AB 290 §§ 1(c) & (d)). These limitations are 15 found nowhere in sections 3(b)(2) and 5(b)(2) and cannot alter the provisions’ plain 16 meaning. Cf. Kingdomware Techs., Inc. v. United States, 579 U.S. 162, 172–73 (2016) 17 (“The [prefatory] clause announces an objective that Congress hoped that the 18 Department would achieve . . . but it does not change the plain meaning of the operative 19 clause.” (citation omitted)). More fundamentally, the State’s preferred interpretation is 20 implausible. If the State sought in sections 3(b)(2) and 5(b)(2) to limit only “certain 21 practices,” the statute could have said so directly. That AB 290 does not is sufficient to 22 dispose of the State’s argument.⁵

23 Third, the State does not contest AKF’s showing that AB 290’s disclosure 24 requirements violate the First Amendment. See AKF Br. 17; AKF Opp. 14; State Opp.
25 16–17. The argument is therefore conceded. E.g., Montgomery v. Specialized Loan

26 _____
27 ⁵ Even accepting the State’s indefensible interpretation, sections 3(b)(2) and 5(b)(2) 28 would be void for vagueness. See infra at 11–12. It is far from clear what “practices” sections 3(b)(2) and 5(b)(2) prohibit under the State’s proffered reading.

1 Servicing, LLC, No. 18 CV-1257 PSG (KK), 2018 WL 3756413, at *5 (C.D. Cal. Aug.
2 6, 2018) (holding “[a]rguments to which no response is supplied are deemed conceded” 3 and collecting cases). Moreover, even if the State had offered some response, the 4 disclosure requirements should be struck down because “compelled disclosure of 5 affiliation with groups engaged in advocacy” infringes AKF’s freedom of association.
6 Ams. for Prosperity Found. v. Bonta, 141 S. Ct. 2373, 2382 (2021) (quoting NAACP v.
7 Alabama ex rel. Patterson, 357 U.S. 449, 462 (1958)).

8 3. AB 290 Is Unconstitutionally Vague.

9 Nothing in the State’s belabored, atextual interpretation responds meaningfully 10 to AKF’s evidence establishing that the Advising Restriction is unconstitutionally 11 vague. See AKF Br. 17–18; AKF Opp. 14–15.

12 The State first asserts that “the term ‘advise’ is not difficult to understand[.]” 13 State Opp. 15. But that only underscores that the Advising Restriction is 14 unconstitutionally vague. Rather than giving the terms “steer,” “direct,” and “advise” 15 individual meaning, the State conflates all three directives and asserts that they prohibit 16 “the forms of encouragement prohibited by AB 290.” Id. Of course, the term “forms 17 of encouragement” is itself entirely vague and found nowhere in the Advising 18 Restriction. Instead, the State gestures to one of AB 290’s legislative findings. See 19 State Opp. 15 (quoting AB 290, § 1(c)). But a “prefatory clause” cannot change the 20 meaning of an “operative clause.” Kingdomware Techs., 579 U.S. at 172–73.
21 Moreover, the State’s interpretation is divorced from the text of the Advising 22 Restriction. The terms “steer,” “direct,” and “advise” necessarily prohibit more than 23 merely “[e]ncouraging patients to enroll in commercial insurance coverage for the 24 financial benefit of the provider.” AB 290 § 1(c); see Safeco Ins. Co. of America v.
25 Burr, 551 U.S. 47, 60 (2007) (noting courts must “[g]ive effect, if possible, to every 26 clause and word of a statute” (quoting United States v. Menasche, 348 U.S. 528, 538– 27 39 (1955)). Ultimately, “[r]ewriting the statute is a job for the [California] legislature, 28 if it is so inclined, and not for this court.” Valle del Sol Inc. v. Whiting, 732 F.3d 1006, 1 1021 (9th Cir. 2013).

2 The State also quibbles with the definition of “advise.” State Opp. 16. The 3 multiple definitions the State offers show only that the Advising Restriction is vague.
4 See id. Indeed, the State has no answer for the fact that its own representatives 5 understand the Advising Restriction to encompass more than “steering” patients to 6 commercial insurance plans. See AKF Opp. 15; SUFCL ¶¶ 124–25. The Advising 7 Restriction thus fails to give “ordinary people . . . fair notice of the conduct” it prohibits 8 and should be struck down as unconstitutionally vague. Sessions v. Dimaya, 138 S. Ct.
9 1204, 1212 (2018) (internal quotation marks omitted).

10 4. AB 290 Violates AKF’s Right to Petition.

11 AB 290 violates AKF’s First Amendment right to petition the government by 12 requiring AKF to seek a new advisory opinion from the HHS OIG in order to delay AB 13 290’s effective date. See AKF Br. 18–19; AKF Opp. 15–16. The State’s Opposition 14 contends that AB 290 “merely provides AKF the option to request” an updated opinion.
15 State Opp. 20 (emphasis in original). But, as Chief Justice Roberts has observed, a 16 government “inducement” may be little more than a “gun to the head.” Nat’l Fed’n
17 Indep. Bus. v. Sebelius, 567 U.S. 519, 581 (2012) (Roberts, C.J.). Here, AB 290
18 penalizes AKF based on how it chooses to petition the government, thus infringing 19 AKF’s First Amendment rights. See AKF Br. 18–19; AKF Opp. 15–16 (collecting 20 cases). This provides yet another reason to strike down the statute.

21 C. AB 290 Is Preempted by Federal Law.

22 In addition to its First Amendment infirmities, AB 290 violates the Supremacy 23 Clause in two respects. First, it conflicts with the Beneficiary Inducement Statute as 24 that statute’s application has been interpreted by OIG in Advisory Opinion 97-1. See 25 AKF Br. 19–23; AKF Opp. 16–21. Second, AB 290 conflicts with the Medicare 26 Secondary Payer Act by treating HIPP patients with ESRD differently from other 27 patients with kidney disease. See AKF Br. 23–25; AKF Opp. 24–25.

1 1. AB 290 Is Preempted by the Beneficiary Inducement Statute.

2 AB 290 would force AKF to change HIPP in ways that would put it outside the 3 safe harbor of Advisory Opinion 97-1. See AKF Br. 19–23; AKF Opp. 16–21.
4 Advisory Opinion 97-1 “is limited in scope to the specific arrangement described 5 [within it].” Dkt. 29-2 (RJN Exh. 2, at 26) (Advisory Opinion 97-1) (emphasis added); 6 see also 42 C.F.R. § 1008.43(b). If AKF were to adjust HIPP to conform with AB 290, 7 AKF would run a significant risk of violating the Beneficiary Inducement Statute. And 8 if AKF does not adjust HIPP in this manner, it will be in violation of California law.
9 AB 290 is therefore preempted because it is “‘impossible’ for [AKF] to comply with 10 both state and federal requirements.” Merck Sharp & Dohme Corp. v. Albrecht, 139 S.
11 Ct. 1668, 1672 (2019) (quoting Mutual Pharm. Co. v. Bartlett, 570 U.S. 472, 480 12 (2013)).

13 Despite AKF’s consistent position for more than two years of litigation, the State 14 has not meaningfully engaged with it. Instead, the State argues that compliance with 15 both AB 290 and federal law is not impossible because there is “no federal requirement 16 for AKF to run . . . HIPP.” State Opp. 22. That argument is indistinguishable from the 17 “stop-selling theory” of preemption the Supreme Court rejected in Mutual 18 Pharmaceutical Co., Inc. v. Bartlett as “as incompatible with [its] pre-emption 19 jurisprudence.” 570 U.S. at 475, 488. As the Court explained, “an actor seeking to 20 satisfy both his federal- and state-law obligations is not required to cease acting 21 altogether in order to avoid liability.” Id. at 488. Neither federal law nor the 22 Constitution requires AKF to abandon its charitable activities to avoid a conflict that 23 the State has itself created.

24 In advancing its position, the State misapprehends Supreme Court precedent.
25 Pointing to Merck Sharp & Dohme Corp. v. Albrecht and PLIVA, Inc. v. Mensing, the 26 State argues that, in those cases, “it was clear that federal law placed affirmative 27 requirements on drug manufacturers to label their products in certain ways, and that 28 state laws imposing conflicting requirements may be preempted.” State Opp. 21–22.

1 So too here. The Beneficiary Inducement Statute places an affirmative requirement on 2 parties not to offer “remuneration” in order to influence individual’s choice of a health 3 care provider. See AKF Opp. 16. AKF has operated HIPP under the aegis of Advisory 4 Opinion 97-1 to avoid liability under the Beneficiary Inducement Statute. See id. 17.
5 There is no dispute that, if AKF were to adjust HIPP to conform to AB 290, that safe 6 harbor would be withdrawn. See id. 19. AKF is thus left with the impossible choice of 7 risking a violation of federal or California law.⁶

8 The State continues to claim that Advisory Opinion 97-1 does not conflict with 9 AB 290. See State Opp. 23. But that misses the point. Plaintiffs’ argument is that AB 10 290 conflicts with the Beneficiary Inducement Statute, not the Advisory Opinion itself.
11 In a similar vein, the State also claims that Advisory Opinion 97-1 does not carry the 12 force of federal law. See id. 22–23. That is incorrect on its own terms, as “[e]ach 13 advisory opinion issued by the Secretary shall be binding as to the Secretary and the 14 party or parties requesting the opinion.” 42 U.S.C. § 1320a-7d(b)(4). More 15 fundamentally, the State’s argument is irrelevant. The issue is that AB 290, by forcing 16 AKF out of the safe harbor created by Advisory Opinion 97-1, puts AKF at risk of 17 violating the Beneficiary Inducement Statute.

18 The State also repeats its argument that AB 290 does not conflict with the factual 19 predicates of Advisory Opinion 97-1. See State Opp. 23–24. Each point the State raises 20 is incorrect. Contrary to the State’s position, Advisory Opinion 97-1 is not limited to 21 sanctioning payments for Medicare Part B or Medigap premiums. See id. 23. Advisory 22 Opinion 97-1 explicitly recognizes that HIPP “provides financial assistance to 23 financially needy ESRD patients . . . , including Medicare Part B and Medigap 24 premiums.” Dkt. 29-2 (RJN Exh. 2, at 21) (emphasis added). The term “including”

25 ⁶ While the State invokes Albrecht’s reference to “clear evidence” of preemptive effect, 26 see State Opp. 21, the Supreme Court explained in that case that, at core, “the judge 27 must simply ask himself or herself whether the relevant federal and state law 28 irreconcilably conflict.” 139 S. Ct. at 1679 (cleaned up). AB 290’s provisions force that irreconcilable conflict with the Beneficiary Inducement Statute.

1 does not limit Advisory Opinion 97-1; it clarifies that HIPP can include a variety of 2 health insurance premium payments. See In re Yochum, 89 F.3d 661, 668 (9th Cir.
3 1996) (“‘[I]nclude’ is frequently, if not generally, used as a word of extension or 4 enlargement rather than as one of limitation or enumeration.” (quoting Am. Surety Co.
5 of New York v. Marotta, 287 U.S. 513, 517 (1933))); see also AKF Opp. 22. Moreover, 6 Advisory Opinion 97-1 observed that “[HIPP] [a]ssistance is available to all eligible 7 patients on an equal basis.” Dkt. 29-2 (RJN Exh. 2, at 21) (emphasis added).

8 The State continues to argue that AB 290 would not necessarily lead HIPP 9 patients to learn whether their dialysis provider had donated to AKF, thus breaching the 10 terms of Advisory Opinion 97-1. See State Opp. 23–24; see also AKF Opp. 17–19. But 11 the State itself acknowledges that HIPP recipients could “potentially learn that their 12 provider is a donor.” State Opp. 24 (emphasis added). The California Legislative 13 Counsel Bureau agrees that “it may be possible . . . for a patient to infer that the patient’s 14 provider has donated [to AKF].” Dkt. 29-2 (RJN Exh. 3, at 34–35). In any event, the 15 State’s view is irrelevant. As the Legislative Counsel Bureau also recognized, whether 16 AKF will remain within the safe harbor of Advisory Opinion 97-1 “would be a factual 17 determination made by the OIG.” Id. at 34–35 (emphasis added). AKF should not be 18 forced to take the fatal risk that OIG will make an adverse determination. See Dkt. 132-19 19 (Burton 2022 Decl. ¶¶ 36, 38, 40).

20 2. AB 290 Is Preempted by the Medicare Secondary Payer Act.

21 AB 290 is also preempted by the Medicare Secondary Payer Act (“MSPA”). See 22 AKF Br. 23–25; AKF Opp. 24–25. AB 290 creates a novel, reduced reimbursement 23 rate for ESRD patients that benefit from HIPP. See AB 290, §§ 3(e), 3(h)(2)(A), 5(e), 24 5(h)(1)(A) (providing that dialysis providers that contribute to AKF are “financially 25 interested” and are subject to reduced reimbursement rates for HIPP patients they treat).
26 That scheme necessarily differentiates between patients with ESRD and other patients.
27 The MSPA prohibits such differentiation. See 42 U.S.C. § 1395y(b)(1)(C); 42 C.F.R.
28 § 411.161(b)(2)(iv); SUFCL ¶¶ 48–49.

1 The State continues to rely on DaVita Inc. v. Amy’s Kitchen, Inc., 981 F.3d 664 2 (9th Cir. 2020), to argue that AB 290 does not conflict with the MSPA. See State Opp.
3 25. The State contends that AB 290 does not request differentiation between patients 4 based on their ESRD, citing Amy Kitchen’s statement that a “plan that provides identical 5 benefits to someone with ESRD as to someone without ESRD does not ‘differentiate’ 6 between those two classes.” 981 F.3d at 678.

7 But, as Plaintiffs explained before, Amy’s Kitchen is not a preemption case. See 8 AKF Opp. 25. Moreover, the State ignores the sentence that immediately follows its 9 preferred quote: “That simplistic approach must yield for treatments that apply 10 exclusively to ESRD patients, because differential coverage of ESRD-specific 11 treatments is no different than differential treatment of persons with ESRD.” Amy’s 12 Kitchen, 981 F.3d at 678 (emphasis omitted). Here, HIPP only pays for dialysis 13 treatments for ESRD patients. And there is no dispute that AB 290 creates two different 14 classes of ESRD patients: HIPP patients treated at facilities owned by donors to AKF, 15 and all other ESRD patients. That differentiation “present[s] an obstacle to the variety 16 and mix of [regulatory approaches]” selected by Congress and is therefore preempted 17 by federal law. Geier v. Am. Honda Motor Co., 529 U.S. 861, 881 (2000).

18 III. CONCLUSION

19 When a State seeks to intrude on First Amendment rights in an area that has been 20 carefully regulated by the federal government, it must show that it has narrowly tailored 21 the legislation to serve a legitimate state interest, and it must ensure that the legislation 22 does not conflict with federal law. Meeting those burdens is especially important where, 23 as here, the undisputed evidence shows that AB 290 poses life-threatening 24 consequences for California’s most vulnerable ESRD patients. But after years of 25 litigation, the State still has not come forward with meaningful evidence that AB 290’s 26 content-based restrictions on speech are justified by any legitimate state interest. Nor 27 has it responded meaningfully to the undisputed evidence showing that AB 290 creates 28 an irreconcilable conflict with federal law. The State’s failure to bring into focus any 1 facts sufficient to carry its burdens should be decisive. There is no need for trial or 2 further proceedings; instead, the Court should adhere to its preliminary rulings and 3 strike down AB 290.

4 Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court deny Defendants' Motion for 5 Summary Judgment and instead grant Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment.
