STATEMENT REGARDING ORAL ARGUMENT

We agree with the appellants that the issues presented in this appeal are sufficiently complex and important to warrant argument time.

Argument	5
I. The district court correctly held that the Task Force members are principal officers.....	5
A. The Task Force members are not removable at will by the Secretary, and even if they were that would not make them inferior officers	8
1. The Secretary cannot remove Task Force members at will.....	8
2. An officer does not automatically become an “inferior” officer whenever he is subject to at-will removal by a principal officer.....	12
B. 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) cannot be interpreted to give the Secretary powers to “direct” or “supervise” the Task Force members or their recommendations.....	15
II. The district court correctly held that the Secretary’s attempted “ratification” of the Task Force’s recommendations could not cure the unconstitutional appointment of its members	19
A. The Secretary cannot “ratify” the Task Force recommendations because the Secretary has no authority to decide the preventive care that private insurers must cover under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1)	20

B. Secretary Becerra’s ratification document failed to go through notice-and-comment procedures and is arbitrary and capricious 24

III. The Secretary cannot obviate the Appointments Clause violation by reappointing the Task Force members26

A. 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1), by instructing the Director of AHRQ to “convene” the Task Force, does not alter the presumptive constitutional appointment process26

B. Even if “convene” includes the power to appoint, neither 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) nor any other law “vests” the appointment power in Secretary Becerra30

IV. The district court correctly refused to remedy the Appointments Clause violations by “severing” 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6)38

A. The defendants’ proposed remedy does not cure the Appointments Clause violations38

B. A district court cannot enter a judgment that formally revokes a statutory provision or confers new powers on a cabinet secretary 41

C. The defendants’ proposed remedy will not redress the plaintiffs’ Article III injuries45

V. The district court correctly vacated the unlawful agency actions under 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A) 46

A. The Declaratory Judgment Act.....46

B. The Administrative Procedure Act.....47

C. Injunctive relief..... 48

D. The defendants’ criticisms of the district court’s remedy are groundless49

1. The plaintiffs are entitled to an APA remedy regardless of whether they specifically requested it in their complaint.....49

2.	5 U.S.C. § 706(2) compels courts to “set aside” (i.e. , vacate) unlawful agency action regardless of the balance of equities or the public interest	53
VI.	The Secretary’s attempted ratification of the ACIP recommendations and HRSA guidelines do not cure the Appointments Clause violations	57
VII.	The plaintiffs are preserving their nondelegation claim	60

The Affordable Care Act empowers the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force (Task Force), the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP), and the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) to unilaterally determine the preventive care that private health insurers must cover. See 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13. Since the ACA’s enactment, these entities have issued numerous pronouncements that compel coverage of preventive care without cost-sharing arrangements such as deductibles and co-pays. In 2011, for example, HRSA decided that private insurers must cover FDA-approved contraceptive methods without cost sharing. And in 2021, the Task Force decreed that insurers must cover pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP) drugs such as Truvada and Descovy.

The Task Force members, the members of ACIP, and the HRSA Administrator all wield significant authority pursuant to the laws of the United States, and they must be appointed as “officers” under Article II of the Constitution. Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1, 126 (1976) (per curiam) (“[A]ny appointee exercising significant authority pursuant to the laws of the United States is an ‘Officer of the United States,’”); U.S. Const. art. II, § 2, cl. 2 (“[The President] shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint . . . Officers of the United States . . . but the Congress may by Law vest the Appointment of such inferior Officers . . . in the President alone, in the Courts of Law, or in the Heads of Departments.”). Yet none of these decisionmakers have been constitutionally appointed. The Court should declare it so and enjoin implementation of their preventive-care coverage edicts until they receive a constitutional appointment.

STATEMENT OF JURISDICTION

The defendants' statement of jurisdiction is complete and correct.

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES

1. Whether the district court correctly held that Task Force members are "principal officers" who must be appointed by the President and Senate.

2. Whether the district court correctly held that Secretary Becerra was powerless to cure the unconstitutional appointment of the Task Force by "ratifying" its recommendations.

3. Whether Secretary Becerra can obviate the Appointments Clause problems by appointing the Task Force himself.

4. Whether the district court correctly rejected the defendants' proposal to "sever" 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6), the statutory provision that guarantees the independence of Task Force members and their recommendations.

5. Whether the district court correctly interpreted section 706 of the APA to require vacatur of unlawful agency actions taken to implement and enforce the Task Force's "A" and "B" recommendations under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1).

6. Whether the district court erred in allowing Secretary Becerra's "ratification" of ACIP's recommendations and HRSA's guidelines to cure the Appointments Clause problems with 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(2)-(4).

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The defendants' statement of the case is accurate and we do not dispute their description of the facts or the proceedings below. The relevant statutory provisions appear in the appendix to our brief. The plaintiffs are cross-appelling their Appointments Clause challenge to the powers conferred on ACIP and HRSA by 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(2)-(4). They are also cross-appelling their non-delegation claims but only to preserve them for the Supreme Court.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

1. The district court correctly held that Task Force members are principal officers who must be appointed by the President and Senate. They cannot be “inferior” officers because 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) requires that Task Force members and their recommendations be kept “independent” and “to the extent practicable, not subject to political pressure,” which means that Task Force members cannot be subject to the “direction” or “supervision” of Secretary Becerra or any other principal officer.

2. The district court correctly held that Secretary Becerra cannot cure the unconstitutional appointment of the Task Force by “ratifying” its recommendations, because the Secretary lacks authority to exercise powers of the Task Force or decide the preventive care that private insurers must cover under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1). See Federal Election Comm’n v. NRA Political Victory Fund, 513 U.S. 88, 98 (1994) (“[I]t is essential that the party ratifying should be able not merely to do the act ratified at the time the act was done, but also at the time the ratification was made.’” (citation omitted) (emphasis removed)). The Secretary’s ratification document is also ineffective because it failed to go through notice-and-comment procedures and is arbitrary and capricious.

3. Secretary Becerra cannot shield future recommendations of the Task Force from constitutional challenge by re-appointing its members, because they are principal officers who must be appointed by the President and Senate. The Secretary would also remain powerless to appoint the Task Force even if its members were “inferior” officers because no congressional enactment “vests” him with this appointment power.

4. The district court correctly held that it could not remedy the Appointments Clause violations by “severing” (i.e., nullifying) 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) and empowering the Secretary to veto or cancel the Task Force’s “A” or “B” recommendations. This remedy will not cure the Appointments Clause violations because Task Force members would still wield “significant authority pursuant to the laws of the United States,” yet they would not be constitutionally appointed as “officers.” More importantly, a district-court judgment cannot revoke a statutory provision or confer new powers upon a cabinet secretary that Congress has withheld. This remedy also will not redress the plaintiffs’ Article III injuries, as the plaintiffs would remain subject to the unwanted coverage mandates.

5. The district court correctly vacated the agency actions taken to implement the Task Force’s “A” or “B” recommendations under section 300gg-13(a)(1) and enjoined their future enforcement. 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A) requires courts to “set aside” (i.e., formally vacate) unlawful agency actions, and vacatur under the APA is a universal remedy akin to an executive veto. See Data Marketing Partnership, LP v. United States Dep’t of Labor, 45 F.4th 846, 859-60 (5th Cir. 2022); Franciscan Alliance, Inc. v. Becerra, 47 F.4th 368, 374-75 (5th Cir. 2022).

6. The district court should have upheld the Appointments Clause challenge to the ACIP recommendations and HRSA guidelines. The Secretary’s attempted “ratification” is ineffective because he lacks authority to compel preventive-care coverage under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(2)-(4), or exercise decision-making powers that the statute vests exclusively in ACIP and HRSA. The ratification document also failed to go through notice-and-comment procedures and is arbitrary and capricious.

ARGUMENT

I. THE DISTRICT COURT CORRECTLY HELD THAT THE TASK FORCE MEMBERS ARE PRINCIPAL OFFICERS

The defendants acknowledge that the Task Force members are “officers of the United States” who must be appointed in conformity with Article II. See Appellants’ Br. at 19. But the defendants insist that the Task Force members are “inferior officers,” and that Congress may vest their appointment in the Heads of Department. Id. at 19-27. The district court rejected this argument, ROA.1804-1805, and this Court should reject it as well.

We note at the outset that the Task Force was unconstitutionally appointed regardless of whether its members are “principal” or “inferior” officers. The Task Force was appointed by the Director of the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ),¹ who is not a “Head of Department” and is powerless to appoint even “inferior” officers. See Free Enterprise Fund v. Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 561 U.S. 477, 510 (2010) (defining “Department” as a “freestanding component of the Executive Branch”); Appellants’ Br. at 30 (acknowledging that Task Force members “have not yet received an appointment consistent with the Appointments Clause”). But the Court should resolve this issue because the defendants believe they can fix the constitutional violation by having Secretary Becerra re-appoint the Task Force. See Appellants’ Br. at 30. This is allowed only if the Task Force members are inferior officers, and only if Congress has “vested” their appointment in the Secretary.

An “inferior” officer is an officer whose work is “directed and supervised at some level by others who were appointed by Presidential nomination with the advice and consent of the Senate.” Edmond v. United States, 520 U.S. 651, 662-63 (1997); United States v. Arthrex, Inc., 141 S. Ct. 1970, 1980 (2021) (same). That direction and supervision is absent here. 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) empowers the Task Force—and the Task Force alone—to determine the preventive care that private insurers must cover. Neither the

1. Appellants’ Br. at 4-5; 42 U.S.C. § 299(a); 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a).

Secretary of Health and Human Services, nor any other officer of the United States, has statutory authority to countermand any preventive-care edict issued by the Task Force. Indeed, no other officer can even influence the Task Force’s decisions, as 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) provides that Task Force members and their recommendations “shall be independent and, to the extent practicable, not subject to political pressure.” See also 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) (requiring the Director of AHRQ to “convene an independent Preventive Services Task Force” (emphasis added)). These statutory guarantees of independence preclude any officer of the United States from reviewing or reversing the Task Force’s recommendations, and the absence of “statutory authority” to review Task Force decisions makes its members principal officers. See Arthrex, 141 S. Ct. at 1981 (“statutory authority to review” decisions is needed to make one an inferior officer); id. at 1983 (“[A]dequate supervision entails review of decisions issued by inferior officers.”).

The defendants nonetheless contend that the Task Force is “directed and supervised” by Secretary Becerra despite the guarantees of independence in sections 299b-4(a)(1) and (a)(6). First, the defendants insist that Task Force members are removable at will by the Secretary, which gives the Secretary all the powers of “direction” and “supervision” needed to satisfy Edmond’s test for inferior-officer status. See Appellants’ Br. at 20-24. Second, the defendants claim that the constitutional-avoidance canon requires courts to interpret 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) in a manner that gives the Secretary whatever supervisory powers he needs to make the Task Force members into “inferior” officers. Neither argument works.

A. The Task Force Members Are Not Removable At Will By The Secretary, And Even If They Were That Would Not Make Them Inferior Officers

The defendants’ removal-power argument adopts the following syllogism:

Major premise: Every officer removable at will by a principal officer is an “inferior” officer.

Minor premise: Task Force members are removable at will by Secretary Becerra.

Conclusion: Task Force members are therefore inferior officers.

Both the minor premise and the major premise of this argument are wrong.

1. The Secretary Cannot Remove Task Force Members At Will

The claim that Secretary Becerra can remove Task Force members at will cannot co-exist with the statutory mandates of independence in 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) and 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6), which require Task Force members and their recommendations to be “independent” and “to the extent practicable, not subject to political pressure.”

Protection from at-will removal is the very essence of an “independent” officer. See Humphrey’s Executor v. United States, 295 U.S. 602, 629 (1935) (“[O]ne who holds his office only during the pleasure of another cannot be depended upon to maintain an attitude of independence against the latter’s will.”); Morrison v. Olson, 487 U.S. 654, 693 (1988) (“[T]he congressional determination to limit the removal power of the Attorney General was essential, in the view of Congress, to establish the necessary independence of the office.”); Free Enterprise Fund, 561 U.S. at 483 (“Congress can, under certain circumstances, create independent agencies run by principal officers appointed by the President, whom the President may not remove at will but only for good cause.”). Any officer who can be removed at will is necessarily dependent upon the one who wields the removal power. When the Supreme Court held that Article II gives the President an at-will removal prerogative over the director of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, it described the director and the agency as “dependent” on the President. Seila Law LLC v. Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, 140 S. Ct. 2183, 2211 (2020) (“The Constitution requires that such officials remain dependent on the President”); id. at 2210 (plurality opinion of Roberts, C.J.) (considering “whether Congress would have preferred a dependent CFPB to no agency at all.” (emphasis removed)). At-will removal is the sine qua non of a dependent relationship—and the antithesis of an independent one.

If the Secretary could remove Task Force members at will, then the Task Force and its recommendations would no longer be “independent,” as required by sections 299b-4(a)(1) and (a)(6), because the Secretary could remove (and threaten to remove) any Task Force member that refuses to do his bidding. See Edmond, 520 U.S. at 664 (“The power to remove officers . . . is a powerful tool for control.”). The defendants do not explain how Task Force members and recommendations would remain “independent” of the Secretary in this scenario. At-will removal would also subject Task Force members to “political pressure,” in violation of section 299b-4(a)(6)’s requirement that Task Force members and recommendations be insulated from such pressures “to the extent practicable.”

The defendants do not (and cannot) identify any statute that gives the Secretary at-will removal power over the Task Force, or that in any way undermines the guarantees of independence and protections from political pressure in sections 299b-4(a)(1) and (a)(6). The only authority cited to support at-will removal is a passage in the district court’s opinion noting that the plaintiffs had failed to “identify any removal restrictions on PSTF members,”² as well as cases that demand clear statutory language before courts will enforce limits on the President’s removal powers. See Appellants’ Br. at 20-21 (quoting Exela Enterprise Solutions, Inc. v. NLRB, 32 F.4th 436, 441 (5th Cir. 2022)); see also Collins v. Yellen, 141 S. Ct. 1761, 1782 (2021) (“When a statute does not limit the President’s power to remove an agency head, we generally presume that the officer serves at the President’s pleasure.” (emphasis added)); Exela, 32 F.4th at 441 (quoting Collins). But none of that

2. ROA.1807. The district court rejected our claim that 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) protects the Task Force members from at-will removal because any such interpretation of the statute would, in the district court’s view, violate Article II by interfering with the President’s constitutionally protected removal powers. ROA.1807-1808. This observation does not support a removal power for the Secretary (as opposed to the President). See note 3 and accompanying text.

shows that the Secretary can remove Task Force members at will in the teeth of 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6), and the clear statements needed for statutory limits on the President’s removal powers are inapplicable because Article II does not safeguard the Secretary’s right to remove anyone.³

3. The only circumstances in which a clear statutory statement is needed to limit a subordinate executive official’s removal prerogatives is when Congress has constitutionally limited the President’s removal power over that subordinate executive official, see Free Enterprise Fund, 561 U.S. at 484 (“[M]ultilevel protection from removal is contrary to Article II’s vesting of the executive power in the President”), or when the subordinate executive official or his predecessors previously appointed the officer that he now seeks to remove, see Shurtleff v. United States, 189 U.S. 311, 316 (1903) (“The right of removal . . . inheres in the right to appoint, unless limited by constitution or statute.”). Neither situation applies here, as the Secretary of HHS is removable at will by the President and the Secretary did not appoint the Task Force.

Whether 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) allows the President to remove Task Force members at will presents a more difficult question that this Court need not resolve, as at-will Presidential removal does not render one an “inferior officer.” See Morrison, 487 U.S. at 716 (Scalia, J., dissenting) (“[M]ost (if not all) principal officers in the Executive Branch may be removed by the President at will.”). It is also far from clear that Article II allows the President to remove Task Force members, as the holdings of Seila Law and Collins are limited to agencies headed by a single member. The Task Force is a multi-member entity, and it exercises quasi-legislative rather than executive functions. See Humphrey’s Executor, 295 U.S. at 628. The plaintiffs are not appealing the district court’s ruling on the Presidential-removal issue. ROA.1808.

2. An Officer Does Not Automatically Become An “Inferior” Officer Whenever He Is Subject To At-Will Removal By A Principal Officer

The defendants are also wrong to claim that an at-will removal prerogative would make the Task Force members inferior officers. See Appellants’ Br. at 24 (“Task Force members . . . are removable at will and are therefore inferior officers.”). The Task Force members would still be principal officers even if Secretary Becerra could remove them, because they remain empowered by 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) and 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) to render final decisions regarding the preventive care that private insurers must cover.

The Supreme Court has never held that an officer is automatically deemed “inferior” whenever he is subject to at-will removal by a principal officer. Instead, removability is merely one factor to consider in deciding whether an officer falls on the “principal” or “inferior” side of the line. See Edmond, 520 U.S. at 664-65 (designating military judges inferior officers because they were subject to administrative oversight, were “remov[able] . . . without cause,” and had “no power to render a final decision”); Morrison, 487 U.S. at 671-72 (an officer’s removability is one of four factors in the inferior-officer inquiry); Appointment and Removal of Federal Reserve Bank Members of the Federal Open Market Committee, 43 Op. O.L.C. ____, 2019 WL 11594453, 9-10 (2019) (“To decide whether an officer has a superior, the Supreme Court has considered whether the officer is subject to the policy direction of another official, whether the officer can take ‘final’ action without the approval of another officer, and whether an executive officer other than the President has the ‘power to remove [the] officer[.]’” (quoting Edmond, 520 U.S. at 664-65)).

The Task Force members are principal officers because their preventive-care coverage decisions are not subject to review or reversal by anyone else in the executive branch—and that would remain the case even if the Secretary could remove them at will. See Edmond, 520 U.S. at 665 (“What is significant is that the judges of the Court of Criminal Appeals have no power to render a final decision on behalf of the United States unless permitted to do so by other Executive officers.”). The touchstone for inferior-officer status is whether the individual is “directed and supervised” by a principal officer, not whether he is subject to at-will removal. Id. at 663; Arthrex, 141 S. Ct. at 1980 (“An inferior officer must be ‘directed and supervised at some level by others who were appointed by Presidential nomination with the advice and consent of the Senate.’” (quoting Edmond, 520 U.S. at 663)). The Task Force members—even if removable at will—would still have the “‘power to render a final decision on behalf of the United States’ without . . . review by their nominal superior or any other principal officer in the Executive Branch.” Arthrex, 141 S. Ct. at 1981 (quoting Edmond, 520 U.S. at 665)).

At-will removal would allow the Secretary to fire Task Force members if he is unhappy with their performance, but it would not empower him to overrule their recommendations or direct their decisionmaking given the guarantee of independence in 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6). The defendants have already admitted that section 299b-4(a)(6) makes the Secretary powerless to “direct” the Task Force’s recommendations, even if he could remove them at will.⁴ They cannot turn around after acknowledging this and insist that an at-will removal prerogative is all that is needed to convert the Task Force members into “inferior” officers subject to the Secretary’s “direction” and “supervision.” Myers also recognizes that the power of at-will removal does not entail the prerogative to overrule or revise the subordinate officer’s decisionmaking. See Myers v. United States, 272 U.S. 52, 135 (1926) (“[T]here may be duties so peculiarly and specifically committed to the discretion of a particular officer as to raise a question whether the President may overrule or revise the officer’s interpretation of his statutory duty in a particular instance. . . . But even in such a case he may consider the decision after its rendition as a reason for removing the officer, on the ground that the discretion regularly entrusted to that officer by statute has not been on the whole intelligently or wisely exercised.”). Recognizing an at-will removal prerogative for the Secretary (or the President) would not empower them to “overrule” or “revise” the Task Force’s recommendations in the teeth of 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6). At-will removal would give the Secretary some influence over the Task Force, but it would not confer the plenary powers of “direction” and “supervision” needed to convert the Task Force members into inferior officers. See Arthrex, 141 S. Ct. at 1981-82 (a principal officer’s informal means of influencing an officer’s decisionmaking does not render that officer “inferior” in the absence of formal “statutory authority to review” the officer’s decisions.); id. at 1983 (“[A]dequate supervision entails review of decisions issued by inferior officers.”).

4. ROA.1746 (“The Secretary may not, consistent with 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6), direct that the PSTF give a specific preventive service an ‘A’ or ‘B’ rating, such that it would be covered pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1).”).

B. 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) Cannot Be Interpreted To Give The Secretary Powers To “Direct” Or “Supervise” The Task Force Members Or Their Recommendations

The defendants also urge the Court to interpret 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) to give the Secretary just enough powers of “direction” and “supervision” over the Task Force so that its members can be squeezed into the “inferior officer” cubbyhole. See Appellants’ Br. at 24-27. They insist that the constitutional-avoidance canon compels this construction, even though the statutory text requires Task Force members and recommendations to be “independent” and “to the extent practicable, not subject to political pressure.” There are two insurmountable problems with the defendants’ argument.

First. The constitutional-avoidance canon is inapplicable because the defendants’ proposed interpretation will not avoid an Appointments Clause violation. Even if one adopts the defendants’ construction of 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) and gives the Secretary all of the powers needed to turn the Task Force members into “inferior officers,” the Task Force still has not been constitutionally appointed because its members were tapped by the Director of AHRQ, who is not a “Head of Department.”⁵ The defendants recognize this problem and are trying to fix it by having the Secretary re-appoint the Task Force. See Appellants’ Br. at 30. But Congress has not “vested” the Secretary with appointment authority over the Task Force, as required by Article II. See Part III, infra. And even if Congress had “vested” this appointment power in the Secretary, the past coverage recommendations of the Task Force still cannot be implemented because its members were unconstitutionally appointed when those recommendations were made. See Lucia v. SEC, 138 S. Ct. 2044, 2055 (2018); Ryder v. United States, 515 U.S. 177, 182-83 (1995). The statutes governing the Task Force and its coverage mandates violate the Appointments Clause no matter how 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) is construed—and regardless of whether the Task Force members are principal or inferior officers.

5. See note 1 and accompanying text.

Second. The language of 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) is not “readily susceptible” to the defendants’ interpretation. See United States v. Stevens, 559 U.S. 460, 481 (2010) (“[T]his Court may impose a limiting construction on a statute only if it is readily susceptible to such a construction. We will not rewrite a . . . law to conform it to constitutional requirements, for doing so would constitute a serious invasion of the legislative domain” (citations and internal quotation marks omitted)); Seila Law, 140 S. Ct. at 2211 (“Constitutional avoidance is not a license to rewrite Congress’s work to say whatever the Constitution needs it to say in a given situation.”).

Consider the text of 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6):

All members of the Task Force convened under this subsection, and any recommendations made by such members, shall be independent and, to the extent practicable, not subject to political pressure.

42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6). The idea that the Secretary can “direct” and “supervise” the Task Force members is incompatible with the statutory guarantees of “independence” and immunity from “political pressure.” The defendants hang their hat on the phrase “to the extent practicable,” which they say can be read to “ensure conformity with constitutional requirements.” Appellants Br. at 25. But that qualifier attaches only to the requirement that Task Force members be shielded from “political pressure.” The command that Task Force members and recommendations “shall be independent” is absolute, and there is no statutory language that gives the Secretary wiggle room to compromise the independence required by 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) and 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1). The defendants do not explain how the Task Force members (and recommendations) can simultaneously be “independent” yet subject to the “direction” and “supervision” of the Secretary. Does anyone think the Federal Reserve would remain “independent” if the Secretary of the Treasury could “direct” and “supervise” its decisions?

The defendants also claim that 42 U.S.C. § 202 and 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(b) allow the Secretary to “direct” and “supervise” the Task Force. See Appellants’ Br. at 24. Neither statute does any such thing. 42 U.S.C. § 202 says that:

The Public Health Service in the Department of Health and Human Services shall be administered by the Assistant Secretary for Health under the supervision and direction of the Secretary.

42 U.S.C. § 202. This places the Assistant Secretary for Health under the Secretary's "supervision" and "direction," but it does not empower the Secretary to supervise or direct the Task Force or any other component of the Public Health Service. The Assistant Secretary for Health, whom the Secretary supervises and directs, is charged only with administering the Public Health Service. The responsibility to "administer" does not empower the Assistant Secretary for Health or his commanding officers to direct and supervise a Task Force that the law requires to be "independent" and free from "political pressure." 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6); Cleavinger v. Saxner, 474 U.S. 193, 203 (1985) ("direct subordinates" whose decisions are subject to review cannot be "independent"); Black's Law Dictionary (11th ed. 2019) (defining "administer" as "[t]o provide or arrange (something) officially as part of one's job").

And 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(b) merely requires the Secretary to establish a "minimum interval" between the issuance of a Task Force recommendation and the plan year in which private insurers must cover the recommended care. This does not empower to Secretary to "direct" or "supervise" the Task Force or its work; it allows him only to decide when the Task Force recommendations (which he is powerless to revoke) become binding.

The final problem with the defendants' argument is they never make clear how much control the Secretary should have over the Task Force. They want this Court to bend the language of 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) to give the Secretary just enough control to make the Task Force members into “inferior officers,” but not so much control as to render their proposed interpretation of 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) textually implausible. See Appellants’ Br. at 27. But where exactly is that line to be drawn? And how much “independence” and protection from “political pressure” should 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) preserve? The defendants never provide a clear answer to these questions, which is understandable since the answer ultimately depends on this Court’s understanding of the minimum amount of “direction” or “supervision” needed for inferior-officer status. But the Court will need to make clear what exactly the Secretary is and is not permitted to do if it waters down 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6)’s commands and allows the Secretary to interfere with the Task Force and its work.

II. THE DISTRICT COURT CORRECTLY HELD THAT THE SECRETARY’S ATTEMPTED “RATIFICATION” OF THE TASK FORCE’S RECOMMENDATIONS COULD NOT CURE THE UNCONSTITUTIONAL APPOINTMENT OF ITS MEMBERS

The defendants contend that the Appointments Clause problems have been obviated by Secretary Becerra’s memo of January 21, 2022, which purports to ratify the preventive-care coverage mandates previously imposed by the Task Force. See Appellants’ Br. at 27-30; ROA.1094. The district court correctly rejected this argument.

A. The Secretary Cannot “Ratify” The Task Force Recommendations Because The Secretary Has No Authority To Decide The Preventive Care That Private Insurers Must Cover Under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1)

The Secretary cannot ratify the Task Force recommendations unless he had authority to issue those recommendations himself. See NRA Political Victory Fund, 513 U.S. at 98 (“[I]t is essential that the party ratifying should be able not merely to do the act ratified at the time the act was done, but also at the time the ratification was made.’” (quoting Cook v. Tullis, 85 U.S. (18 Wall.) 332, 338 (1874) (emphasis in original))); ROA.1794. The Secretary also cannot ratify the Task Force’s preventive-care recommendations unless he “has the power to conduct an independent evaluation of the merits and does so.” Wilkes-Barre Hospital Co. v. NLRB, 857 F.3d 364, 371 (D.C. Cir. 2017).

Yet Secretary Becerra is powerless to ratify or reject the preventive-care recommendations of the Task Force, or to conduct an “independent evaluation” of those recommendations, because the law does not allow him to decide the “items” or “services” that private insurers must cover under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1). The statute makes clear that the Secretary must require coverage of items or services that receive “A” or “B” ratings from the Task Force, whether he approves of those decisions or not:

A group health plan and a health insurance issuer offering group or individual health insurance coverage shall, at a minimum provide coverage for and shall not impose any cost sharing requirements for —

(1) evidence-based items or services that have in effect a rating of “A” or “B” in the current recommendations of the United States Preventive Services Task Force;

42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1). So the Secretary’s purported “ratification” is a meaningless act; it is nothing more than an acknowledgment of the statutory obligations imposed upon him by 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1), as well as his impotence to influence or override the Task Force recommendations under 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6).⁶

If 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) (or some other law) authorized the Secretary to override the Task Force’s recommendations and decide the preventive care that private insurers must cover, then the defendants could plausibly argue that the Secretary’s ratification cures the Appointments Clause violation and allows them to enforce the Task Force recommendations as the handiwork of Secretary Becerra. See Guedes v. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives, 920 F.3d 1, 11 (D.C. Cir. 2019) (rejecting Appointments Clause challenge when the disputed agency rule had been “independently ratified by Attorney General William Barr, whose valid appointment and authority to ratify is unquestioned.” (emphasis added)); 18 U.S.C. § 926(a) (empowering the Attorney General to “prescribe” the agency rule at issue in Guedes); 26 U.S.C. §§ 7801(a)(1), 7801(a)(2)(A), 7805(a) (same). But Guedes is no help to the defendants because there is no statute empowering

6. The defendants acknowledge that “[t]he Secretary may not, consistent with 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6), direct that the PSTF give a specific preventive service an ‘A’ or ‘B’ rating, such that it would be covered pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1).” ROA.1746.

Secretary Becerra to impose preventive-care coverage mandates, or to ratify or overrule the recommendations of the Task Force. See Kajmowicz v. Whitaker, 42 F.4th 138, 147 (3d Cir. 2022) (ratification by a lawfully appointed official must be done “in accordance with the law”). And the other ratification cases that the defendants cite involved situations in which the ratifying officer had unquestioned authority to undertake the disputed action himself.⁷ None of that helps the defendants in this case, where the Secretary not only lacks

7. In Moose Jooce v. FDA, 981 F.3d 26 (D.C. Cir. 2020), Congress authorized the Secretary of Health and Human Services to regulate the manufacture, sale, and distribution of tobacco products. Id. at 27. The Secretary delegated this rulemaking authority to the FDA Commissioner, who re-delegated these powers to FDA’s Associate Commissioner for Policy. Id. When litigants challenged a rule issued by the Associate Commissioner on the ground that he had been unconstitutionally appointed, the FDA Commissioner ratified the disputed rule and obviated the Appointments Clause challenge. Id. at 27-30. But the FDA Commissioner held the undisputed authority to issue this rule, as that power had been explicitly delegated to him by Congress through the Secretary. Id. at 27; Kajmowicz v. Whitaker, 42 F.4th 138, 151 (3d Cir. 2022) (“[M]ost statutes that confer authority will permit subdelegation”); see also id. at 147 (allowing Senate-confirmed Attorney General to ratify a rule issued by an acting predecessor when it was undisputed that the AG had “authority to take the action to be ratified” (citation and internal quotation marks omitted)); NLRB v. Newark Electric Corporation, 14 F.4th 152, 162-63 (2d Cir. 2021) (allowing NLRB General Counsel to ratify action taken by his acting predecessor after concluding that the General Counsel “possess[ed] the authority necessary to undertake the ratified act at the time of ratification”); CFPB v. Gordon, 819 F.3d 1179, 1191-92 (9th Cir. 2016) (allowing Senate-confirmed agency director to ratify a past action that he took as a recess appointee because the agency “had the authority to bring the action at the time”).

authority but is statutorily forbidden to tinker with the Task Force recommendations or impose preventive-care coverage mandates of his own accord.

There is another way of describing this problem. The doctrine of ratification applies only when “a principal sanctions the prior actions of its purported agent.” Wilkes-Barre Hospital, 857 F.3d at 371 (citation and internal quotation marks omitted); see also Moose Jooce, 981 F.3d at 28 (“Ratification occurs when a principal sanctions the prior actions of its purported agent.”); NRA Political Victory Fund, 513 U.S. at 99 (tying the doctrine of ratification to “principles of agency law”); ROA.1794 (same). Yet there cannot be an “agency” relationship between the Secretary and the Task Force when 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) commands that the Task Force and its recommendations be “independent” and (to the extent practicable) “not subject to political pressure.”

The defendants never acknowledge that a ratifying officer must have lawfully delegated authority to undertake the act he is seeking to ratify. See Appellants’ Br. at 27-30. And they do not explain how Secretary Becerra could have wielded powers that 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) and 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) vest exclusively in the Task Force. Nor do they acknowledge the need to demonstrate a principal-agent relationship between the Secretary and the Task Force, and they obfuscate by suggesting that the Secretary need only show that the Task Force members are his “subordinates” rather than his agents. See Appellants’ Br. at 28 (“[P]roperly appointed officers may validly ratify the acts of their subordinates or their predecessors.” (emphasis added)); id. at 29 (“[T]he Secretary may ratify the actions of his subordinates.”).

The closest that the defendants come to addressing these problems is a plea to “interpret” 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) in a manner that empowers the Secretary to “review” Task Force recommendations before they take effect. See Appellant’s Br. at 29-30 (“42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) . . . does not prohibit the Secretary from reviewing Task Force ‘A’ and ‘B’ recommendations as necessary before they become effective under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13.”). This is not statutory interpretation but statutory revision. 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(b) specifically addresses the Secretary’s role vis-à-vis the Task Force recommendations, and it empowers him only to establish a minimum interval of time before the “A” and “B” recommendations become binding on private insurers—not to review or “ratify” the Task Force’s work. And a Task Force whose recommendations are subject to review by the Secretary is no longer “independent,” as required by 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) and (a)(6).

B. Secretary Becerra’s Ratification Document Failed To Go Through Notice-And-Comment Procedures And Is Arbitrary And Capricious

Even if one were to imagine that Secretary Becerra has lawful authority to exercise powers that 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) vests exclusively in the Task Force, his ratification memo would remain ineffective because it failed to go through notice-and-comment procedures. The ratification document is a “rule” under 5 U.S.C. § 551(4), and the APA requires rules to go through notice-and-comment procedures unless a statutory exception applies. See 5 U.S.C. § 553. None of the statutory exceptions are applicable. The memo cannot be fobbed off as an “interpretative rule” because it affects individual rights and obligations,⁸ and it makes no finding of “good cause” to dispense with the notice-and-comment requirements. See 5 U.S.C. § 553(b)(3)(B). So the defendants must explain how this Court can give legal effect to a “rule” that never went through notice and comment, no small task when the “‘APA’s notice and comment exemptions must be narrowly construed.’” Professionals and Patients for Customized Care v. Shalala, 56 F.3d 592, 595 (5th Cir. 1995) (quoting United States v. Picciotto, 875 F.2d 345, 347 (D.C. Cir. 1989)); Shell Offshore, 238 F.3d at 628 (rules that fail to use required notice-and-comment procedures are “invalid”). The defendants must also show how the Secretary’s ratification memo can survive arbitrary-and-capricious review when it never explains its reasoning and treats the previous decisions as a fait accompli. See Department of Homeland Security v. Regents of the University of California, 140 S. Ct. 1891, 1912 (2020); Butte County v. Hogen, 613 F.3d 190, 195 (D.C. Cir. 2010).

8. See Shell Offshore Inc. v. Babbitt, 238 F.3d 622, 628 (5th Cir. 2001) (“Legislative or substantive rules are those which ‘affect individual rights and obligations.’” (quoting *Chrysler Corp. v. III. THE SECRETARY CANNOT OBVIATE THE APPOINTMENTS CLAUSE VIOLATION BY REAPPOINTING THE TASK FORCE MEMBERS

The defendants are attempting to shield the future recommendations of the Task Force from constitutional challenge by having Secretary Becerra re-appoint its members. See Appellants’ Br. at 30. The Court should reject this maneuver because: (1) The Task Force members are principal officers who must be appointed by the President and Senate, see Part I, supra; and (2) If the Task Force members are inferior officers, there is no congressional enactment that alters the constitutional default rule by “vesting” appointment powers in the Secretary.

It is not enough for the defendants to declare the Task Force members inferior officers and arrange for their reappointment by a Head of Department. They must also identify a “Law” that exempts the Task Force from the presumed appointment process by “vesting” the relevant appointment powers in Secretary Becerra. Otherwise the Task Force members must be appointed by the President and Senate—even if they qualify as “inferior officers.” See Edmond, 520 U.S. at 662-63 (“The prescribed manner of appointment for principal officers is also the default manner of appointment for inferior officers.”).

A. 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1), By Instructing The Director Of AHRQ To “Convene” The Task Force, Does Not Alter The Presumptive Constitutional Appointment Process

The defendants appear to believe that 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) exempts the Task Force from the requirement of Presidential appointment with Senate confirmation. But 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) says (in relevant part):

The Director shall convene an independent Preventive Services Task Force . . . to be composed of individuals with appropriate expertise.

42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1). The statute is silent on who appoints the Task Force members. And instructing the Director to “convene” a Task Force does not depart from Article II’s presumption that “officers of the United States” will be appointed by the President and Senate.

The prerogative to “convene” does not encompass a power to “appoint” officers of the United States without the Senate’s advice and consent. “Convene,” when used as a transitive verb, means “[t]o call together, esp. for a formal meeting; to cause to assemble.” Black’s Law Dictionary (11th ed. 2019); see also Convene, Merriam-Webster, <https://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/convene> [<https://perma.cc/QDS6-899D>] (defining the transitive verb “convene” as “1. to summon before a tribunal” and “2. to cause to assemble”). It is always possible that the convening authority might also decide to appoint the individuals that he convenes, as the Director of AHRQ has done with the Task Force. See Appellants’ Br. 5. But “convening” is not “appointing,” and “appointing” is not “convening.” The President and the Senate do not “convene” the Supreme Court when they appoint its members, and the President does not “appoint” his cabinet when he convenes it for meetings.

Statutes throughout the U.S. Code require officials to “convene” committees and councils while forbidding those officials to appoint the convened officials.⁹ Other statutes require officials to “convene” entities while separately authorizing or instructing those officials to appoint the members of the convened body.¹⁰ We have provided the text of these (and many other) statutes in Parts II and III of the appendix. All of this shows that the power to “convene” does not encompass the power to unilaterally appoint individuals who qualify as “officers of the United States,” and it does not alter the constitutional default rule for appointing those officers. The President can “convene” his cabinet for weekly meetings, but that does not mean he can unilaterally appoint his cabinet without the Senate’s advice and consent. Article II governs the appointment of the Task Force, just as it governs the appointment of the President’s cabinet, and the Director’s duty to “convene” the Task Force does not change the presumptive method of appointment under Article II.

9. Compare 22 U.S.C. § 4831(a)(1) (“[T]he Secretary of State shall convene a Security Review Committee” in response to a “serious security incident”) with 22 U.S.C. § 4831(a)(2)(A)-(E) (designating certain individuals who must serve on the Security Review Committee regardless of the Secretary’s wishes); see also 15 U.S.C. § 634c(b)(2)(A) (requiring the Small Business Administrator’s Chief Counsel for Advocacy to “convene” an Interagency Working Group, for which she cannot appoint members); App. Part II.
 10. Compare 10 U.S.C. § 611 (“[T]he Secretary of the military department concerned shall convene selection boards.”) with 10 U.S.C. § 612 (“Members of selection boards shall be appointed by the Secretary of the military department concerned in accordance with this section.”); see also App. Part III.

There was nothing wrong with the Director of ARHQ assuming the power to appoint the Task Force before the Affordable Care Act. The Task Force served a purely advisory function until the ACA gave binding force to its “A” and “B” recommendations, and the Constitution has nothing to say about the appointment of advisory committees. See Constitutional Limitations on Federal Government Participation in Binding Arbitration, 19 Op. O.L.C. 208, 216 (1995) (“[T]he members of a commission that has purely advisory functions ‘need not be officers of the United States’” (citation omitted)); Brian D. Feinstein & Daniel J. Hemel, Outside Advisers Inside Agencies, 108 Geo. L.J. 1139, 1200 & n.340 (2020). The statutory silence on the appointment prerogative allowed the Director, who is charged with administering 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4, to fill this gap by assigning the appointment power to himself. See Chevron U.S.A., Inc. v. Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc., 467 U.S. 837, 843 (1984). But once the Task Force members became “officers of the United States,” the Appointments Clause took over and imposed a constitutional default rule for their appointment—and only a congressional enactment that “vests” the appointment of the Task Force in the President alone, in the Courts of Law, or in the Heads of Department can alter this presumptive appointment method.

Interpreting the word “convene” to include an appointment prerogative also renders 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) unconstitutional, because it would instruct the Director of ARHQ (who is not a Head of Department) to appoint officers in violation of Article II. Edmond requires this Court to reject any such construction of section 299b-4(a)(1). The petitioners in Edmond argued that 10 U.S.C. § 866(a), which requires the Coast Guard Judge Advocate General to “establish” a military court of criminal appeals and “assign” military judges to that court, empowered the Judge Advocate General to appoint those judges. But the Court refused to interpret “establish” and “assign” to encompass an appointment prerogative, because that interpretation would make 10 U.S.C. § 866(a) unconstitutional:

[W]e see no other way to interpret [10 U.S.C. § 866(a)] that would make it consistent with the Constitution. Under the Appointments Clause, Congress could not give the Judge Advocates General power to “appoint” even inferior officers of the United States; that power can be conferred only upon the President, department heads, and courts of law. Thus, petitioners are asking us to interpret [10 U.S.C. § 866(a)] in a manner that would render it clearly unconstitutional—which we must of course avoid doing if there is another reasonable interpretation available.

Edmond, 520 U.S. at 658. Edmond controls here, and it compels an interpretation of “convene” that does not include an appointment power over the Task Force.

B. Even If “Convene” Includes The Power To Appoint, Neither 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) Nor Any Other Law “Vests” The Appointment Power In Secretary Becerra

There is an additional reason why Secretary Becerra cannot escape future Appointments Clause issues by reappointing the Task Force. Even if one interprets the word “convene” in 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) to include an appointment power, that still cannot alter the constitutional default rule because Congress has not “vested” the appointment power in a Head of Department.

The defendants do not (and cannot) claim that 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) “vests” the appointment power in Secretary Becerra. But they try to fix this problem by pointing to other statutes—and insisting that those statutes, together with section 299b-4(a)(1), “authorize” the Secretary to appoint the Task Force. See Appellants’ Br. at 30-35. The first of these statutes instructs the Secretary to “carry out” the subchapter that establishes the Task Force by “acting through the Director” of AHRQ:

There is established within the Public Health Service an agency to be known as the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, which shall be headed by a director appointed by the Secretary. The Secretary shall carry out this subchapter acting through the Director.

42 U.S.C. § 299(a). The defendants also rely on HHS’s Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1966, which authorizes the Secretary to perform “all functions of the Public Health Service . . . and of all other officers and employees of the Public Health Service.” 80 Stat. 1610.¹¹

The problem for the defendants is that neither statute “vests” the appointment of Task Force members in the Secretary; they merely allow him to commandeer the Director’s powers if the Secretary chooses to. So if 42

11. This statute does not appear to authorize the Secretary to perform the functions of the Task Force itself. See 80 Stat. 1610 (“This section shall not apply to the functions vested by law in any advisory council . . . in the Public Health Service.”); 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6).

U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) confers an appointment power, that power remains “vested” in the Director, while the Secretary has nothing more than an option to exercise the Director’s powers given his supervisory role over the Department. The situation is no different from a statute that confers an appointment power on an executive-branch bureaucrat that the President can direct and control. That the President retains an option to exercise powers that Congress has vested in someone else does not mean that Congress has “vested” an appointment power in the President. If the defendants’ argument were accepted, then every statute that vests an appointment power in someone subject to the President’s direction is also “vesting” that appointment prerogative in the President himself. See Removal of Assistant Postmaster of Washington, D.C., 17 U.S. Op. Att’y Gen. 475, 475 (1882) (rejecting this idea); Mow Sun Wong v. Hampton, 435 F. Supp. 37, 42 n.6 (N.D. Cal. 1977) (same).

None of the cases cited by the defendants support their claim that Congress has “vested” the appointment of the Task Force in the Secretary. In United States v. Hartwell, 73 U.S. 385 (1867), the statute required the Secretary of the Treasury to approve any appointment made by the assistant treasurer:

The assistant treasurer of the United States at Boston is hereby authorized to appoint, with the approbation of the Secretary of the Treasury, . . . clerk[s]

14 Stat. 202 (emphasis added) (cited in Hartwell, 73 U.S. at 393). Hartwell held that the clerks were constitutionally appointed because Congress compelled the Treasury Secretary to approve his subordinate’s appointments, thereby “vesting” the appointment power in a “Head of Department.” There is no similar statute requiring Secretary Becerra’s “approbation” before a Task Force member is appointed; on the contrary, the statutes are indifferent toward whether the Secretary has any involvement in the appointments. That falls far short of “vesting” the appointment of the Task Force in the Secretary.¹²

Edmond held that Congress had “vested” the appointment of civilian Coast Guard judges in the Secretary of Transportation, but only because 49 U.S.C. § 323(a) specifically conferred a broad appointment power on the Secretary of Transportation, allowing him to appoint all “‘officers and employees of the Department of Transportation.’” Edmond, 520 U.S. at 656 (quoting 49 U.S.C. § 323(a)). Crucial to the holding in Edmond was that there were no statutes authorizing anyone else to appoint the Coast Guard judges. Id. at 656-57 (rejecting the claim that 10 U.S.C. § 866(a) allowed the Judge Advocate General to appoint the judges). Edmond recognizes that Congress “vests” the appointment power in a Head of Department when it explicitly

12. In Kennedy v. United States, 146 F.2d 26 (5th Cir. 1944), the parties had stipulated that the plaintiff had been appointed “with the approval of the Secretary of the War Department.” Id. at 28. The parties did not contest whether Congress had “vested” this authority in the Secretary of War, and the Court did not rule on the issue.

authorizes a cabinet secretary to appoint and when no other statute can be construed to vest the appointment power in a different officer. It has no application here, where the defendants cannot identify any statute mentioning appointments or even suggesting a departure from the constitutional default rule.

Willy v. Administrative Review Board, 423 F.3d 483 (5th Cir. 2005), is more helpful to the defendants' position because it allowed the Secretary of Labor to create an Administrative Review Board and appoint its members based on vague but sweeping language in a statutory reorganization plan and 5 U.S.C. § 301, neither of which mentioned the appointment power. See Willy, 423 F.3d at 491-92. But Willy is wrongly decided and its holding should be construed as narrowly as possible. The statutory reorganization plan in Willy provided only that:

[T]he Secretary of Labor may from time to time make such provisions as he shall deem appropriate authorizing the performance by any other officer, or by any agency or employee, of the Department of Labor of any function of the Secretary.

Id. at 492 (quoting Reorg. Plan No. 6 of 1950, § 2, 15 Fed. Reg. 3174 (1950), 64 Stat. 1263). And 5 U.S.C. § 301 merely authorized the Labor Secretary to “prescribe regulations for the government of his department . . . [and] the distribution and performance of its business. . . .” Id. (quoting 5 U.S.C. § 301). None of that alters the constitutional default rule requiring “officers of the United States” to be appointed by the President and the Senate. Even if these statutes authorize the Labor Secretary to create an Administrative Review Board, as the Willy Court held, they do not change the constitutional requirement that “officers of the United States” are appointed by the President and the Senate—because neither statute says anything about appointments and does not purport to transfer any of the President and the Senate’s appointment powers. If the Labor Secretary wants to create a new entity and imbue its members with “significant authority pursuant to the laws of the United States,”¹³ then he must respect the default method of appointment in Article II until Congress enacts statutory language opting out of that default rule and vesting the Secretary with an appointment prerogative. Statutes that merely authorize the Secretary to “make . . . provisions” and “prescribe regulations” won’t cut it, especially when those statutes say nary a word about appointments and do not even appear to authorize appointments.

Willy is also incompatible with the Supreme Court’s binding pronouncement in Myers, which it never cites, and which holds that exceptions to the default method of appointment in Article II are to be “strictly construed, and not to be extended by implication”:

[A]rticle 2 excludes the exercise of legislative power by Congress to provide for appointments and removals, except only as granted therein to Congress in the matter of inferior offices; that Congress is only given power to provide for appointments and removals of inferior officers after it has vested, and on condition that it does vest, their appointment in other authority than the President with the Senate’s consent; that the provisions of the second section of article 2, which blend action by the legislative branch, or by part of it, in the work of the executive, are limitations to be strictly construed, and not to be extended by implication; Myers, 272 U.S. at 165 (emphasis added).

The rule of orderliness prevents this panel from overruling Willy. See Wilson v. Taylor, 658 F.2d 1021, 1034 (5th Cir. 1981). So we are not asking the panel to overrule Willy but to construe it narrowly and distinguish it. And Willy can be distinguished from this case on many grounds. First, 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) instructs the Director of AHRQ and not the Secretary to “convene” the Task Force. So to the extent that 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(1) confers an appointment power over the Task Force, it “vests” those appointing powers in the Director, while leaving the Secretary with nothing more than an option to exercise powers that Congress has vested in someone else. No statute of that sort affected the “vesting” analysis in Willy.

There is another difference between this case and Willy: The Secretary of Health and Human Services neither appointed the Task Force members nor formally delegated his supposed appointment powers until the plaintiffs sued. This shows that no Secretary until now regarded these statutes as “vesting” him with the power to appoint the Task Force. The executive’s longstanding refusal to construe these statutes as “vesting” the appointment power in the Secretary (as opposed to the Director of AHRQ) cuts against its attempt to do so for the first time now. See Biden v. Nebraska, 143 S. Ct. 2355, 2372 (2023) (disapproving an agency interpretation that was inconsistent with “past practice under the statute.”).

Finally, Congress enacted HHS's Reorganization Plan No. 3 in 1966, before Congress created the Task Force or placed it within the Public Health Service. So the "functions of the Public Health Service" that Congress "transferred" to the Secretary in 1966 did not include the power to appoint the Task Force, which did not exist at the time.¹⁴ And the section allowing the Secretary to "make . . . provisions" regarding the functions transferred to him¹⁵ does not empower him to do anything regarding the Task Force, because that was not a "function" transferred to him in 1966. So the defendants cannot claim that Congress's enactment of Reorganization Plan No. 3 "vests" the Secretary with powers over the Task Force in any way.¹⁶

See Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1966, § 1(a), 80 Stat. 1610 ("Except as otherwise provided in subsection (b) of this section, there are hereby transferred to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare . . . all functions of the Public Health Service . . . and of all other officers and employees of the Public Health Service")
 15. See Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1966, § 2, 80 Stat. 1610 ("The Secretary may from time to time make such provisions as he shall deem appropriate authorizing the performance of any of the functions transferred to him by the provisions of this reorganization plan by any officer, employee, or agency of the Public Health Service or of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.").
 16. If the Court is unwilling to distinguish Willy on these grounds, then we respectfully preserve our arguments against Willy for consideration by the en banc court or the Supreme Court.

IV. THE DISTRICT COURT CORRECTLY REFUSED TO REMEDY THE APPOINTMENTS CLAUSE VIOLATIONS BY “SEVERING” 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6)

The defendants insist that the district court should have remedied the Appointments Clause violations by “severing” the statutory provision that guarantees the independence of the Task Force and prohibits political interference with its recommendations, thereby “permitting” the Secretary “to review and reject Task Force ‘A’ and ‘B’ recommendations before they would become effective under § 300gg-13.” Appellants’ Br. at 37. This remedy is unlawful for many reasons.

A. The Defendants’ Proposed Remedy Does Not Cure The Appointments Clause Violations

The first problem is that a regime in which the Secretary is “permitted” to countermand the “A” or “B” recommendations of the Task Force still violates the Appointments Clause. The defendants’ proposed remedy would allow the Secretary to overrule the Task Force’s “A” and “B” recommendations but not their failure to recommend coverage of items or services under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1). See Appellants’ Br. at 37 (“[T]he limitations in § 299b-4(a)(6) . . . can be severed to the extent of permitting the Secretary to review and reject Task Force ‘A’ and ‘B’ recommendations before they would become effective”). This would create a regime in which both the Secretary and the Task Force have gatekeeping functions in deciding which preventive care the private insurers must cover.

But that means the Task Force will still wield “significant authority pursuant to the laws of the United States,”¹⁷ because preventive-care mandates cannot and will not take effect without its recommendation and approval.¹⁸ And it does not make the Task Force members into “inferior officers,” because no principal officer has any ability to review or countermand their decisions not to adopt an “A” or “B” recommendation. See Arthrex, 141 S. Ct. at 1981. Moreover, even if the defendants’ proposed remedy converted the Task Force members into “inferior officers,” their appointment would still violate the Constitution because Congress has not opted out of the default method of appointment in Article II. See section III, supra.

The situation in Arthrex was different because the court-imposed remedy made every decision by the Administrative Patent Judges reviewable by the Director of the Patent and Trademark Office—regardless of which direction the decision took. A decision denying the validity of a patent was subject to plenary review by the Senate-confirmed Director in the same manner as a decision upholding the patent’s validity. See Arthrex, 141 S. Ct. at 1986 (“Decisions by APJs must be subject to review by the Director.”). The defendants’ proposed remedy, by contrast, allows for principal-officer review only of decisions to recommend preventive-care coverage, and it leaves the Task Force

17. Buckley, 424 U.S. at 126.

18. See notes 4 and 6, supra, and accompanying text. The defendants appear to acknowledge that their proposed remedy would not strip Task Force members of their status as “officers.” See Appellants’ Br. at 38 (describing the Task Force members as “inferior officers”).

with unreviewable discretion when it declines to recommend new coverage mandates.¹⁹ There was also no dispute in Arthrex that Congress had properly “vested” the appointment of the Administrative Patent Judges in the Secretary of Commerce, thereby opting out of the default rule established in Article II. See 35 U.S.C. § 6(a) (“The administrative patent judges shall be . . . appointed by the Secretary”); Arthrex, Inc., 141 S. Ct. at 1977 (“The Secretary of Commerce appoints . . . the APJs”).²⁰ In this case, the Task Force members are not properly appointed “inferior officers” because they were appointed by the Director of AHRQ, who is not a Head of Department, and

19. The defendants’ reliance on Free Enterprise Fund, 561 U.S. 477, and Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, Inc. v. Copyright Royalty Board, 684 F.3d 1332 (D.C. Cir. 2012), is misplaced for the same reason, as there was no dispute that the court-imposed remedies in those cases would completely eliminate the Appointments Clause violations. Id. at 1340 (“[I]nvalidating and severing the restrictions on the Librarian’s ability to remove the CRJs eliminates the Appointments Clause violation”); Free Enterprise Fund, 561 U.S. at 510 (“[Because] the statutory restrictions on the Commission’s power to remove Board members are unconstitutional and void . . . we have no hesitation in concluding that under Edmond the Board members are inferior officers whose appointment Congress may permissibly vest in a ‘Hea[d] of Departmen[t].’”).
20. The same was true in Free Enterprise Fund, where Congress unambiguously “vested” the appointment of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board in the SEC (a Head of Department), see 15 U.S.C. § 7211(e)(4)(A) (“[T]he Commission . . . shall appoint the chairperson and other initial members of the Board”), and in Intercollegiate Broadcasting, where Congress unambiguously “vested” the appointment of Copyright Royalty Judges in the Librarian of Congress, a Head of Department, see 17 U.S.C. § 801(a) (“The Librarian of Congress shall appoint . . . Copyright Royalty Judges”).

there is no statute vesting their appointment in the President alone, the Courts of Law, or the Heads of Department. See section III, supra.

B. A District Court Cannot Enter A Judgment That Formally Revokes A Statutory Provision Or Confers New Powers On A Cabinet Secretary

There is a more serious problem with the defendants’ proposed remedy: A federal district court has no power to cancel the statutory provision in 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) or confer new powers on a cabinet secretary. A district court’s remedial tools extend to declaratory judgments, injunctions, APA remedies, and writs—and these remedies are limited by statute and historical practice. See Whole Woman’s Health v. Jackson, 142 S. Ct. 522, 535 (2021). The defendants do not explain how their proposed remedy fits into any of these categories.

The defendants want a judgment that would “sever”²¹ 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) and allow Secretary Becerra to disregard it, thereby “permitting the

21. The defendants are misusing the terms “sever” and “severance.” A court “severs” a statute when it separates and preserves its constitutional portions or applications in response to a constitutional problem, rather than declaring the entire statutory enactment unconstitutional across the board. See Leavitt v. Jane L., 518 U.S. 137, 138 (1996). Everyone agrees that 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) is “severable” in that sense of the word, and no one is suggesting that the entire Affordable Care Act should be declared unconstitutional because of the Appointments Clause problems in 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1). The defendants are using the word “sever” to mean something akin to “nullify” or “invalidate.” We respectfully urge the Court to avoid the defendants’ nomenclature, which is imprecise and misleading.

Secretary to review and reject Task Force ‘A’ and ‘B’ recommendations.” Appellants’ Br. at 37. But it is impossible to see how this proposed remedy could take the form of a declaratory judgment, injunction, APA remedy, or writ. The Declaratory Judgment Act authorizes courts to declare only “the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking such declaration.” 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a). It does not empower courts to opine on issues of law in the abstract, and it does not authorize them to veto or erase statutory provisions. See NetChoice, L.L.C. v. Paxton, 49 F.4th 439, 448 (5th Cir. 2022) (“[T]he judicial power vested in us by Article III does not include the power to veto statutes.”); id. at 449 (“[C]ourts have no authority to strike down statutory text’” (citation omitted)).²² The only “interested part[ies]” seeking a declaration of their “rights and “legal relations” are the plaintiffs, and Secretary Becerra has not counterclaimed for a declaration of his “rights” or “legal relations.” So a court cannot use the Declaratory Judgment Act to impose the remedy that the defendants suggest.

It is likewise impossible to craft an injunction that imposes the remedy envisioned by the defendants. Injunctions restrain litigants from violating the law or order litigants to comply with the law. Yet the defendants’ remedy would confer a new and discretionary power upon the Secretary—the power to review and veto the Task Force’s “A” and “B” recommendations. That regime cannot be imposed through an injunction. Whom would the injunction be directed to, and what would it say? The equitable powers of a federal district court are limited to relief that was “traditionally accorded by courts of equity” when the Constitution was ratified. Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc., 527 U.S. 308, 318-19 (1999); Whole Woman’s Health, 142 S. Ct. at 535. Courts of equity did not create or confer powers for government officials, and the defendants cite no authority to support this idea. Allowing a court judgment to confer new powers on executive-branch officials also violates the separation of powers, as officers must trace their authority to a valid congressional enactment. See Federal Election Commission v. Ted Cruz for Senate, 142 S. Ct. 1638, 1649 (2022) (“An agency . . . ‘literally has no power to act’—including under its regulations—unless and until Congress authorizes it to do so by statute.” (citation omitted)).

22. Intercollegiate Broadcasting claimed a power to “invalidate” a statutory provision limiting the Librarian of Congress’s removal powers. Intercollegiate Broadcasting, 684 F.3d at 1342 (“[W]e invalidate and sever the portion of the statute limiting the Librarian’s ability to remove the Judges.”). That is a textbook example of the writ-of-erasure fallacy; the judiciary has no power to “invalidate” statutes. NetChoice, 49 F.4th at 448.

The APA allows reviewing courts to “hold unlawful and set aside”²³ agency action, but the defendants are not asking the Court to do that. They are instead asking the Court to authorize agency action by conferring powers on the Secretary that Congress has specifically withheld. Nothing in the APA allows courts to award that relief. The APA also permits reviewing courts to “compel agency action unreasonably withheld or unreasonable delayed,”²⁴ but the defendants are not asking this Court to compel the Secretary to do anything. They want the Secretary to be given a discretionary power to review and countermand the Task Force’s “A” and “B” recommendations. Finally, the defendants do not identify any writ that could be used to impose this remedy under 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a).

23. 5 U.S.C. § 706(2).

The defendants claim their proposed remedy is supported by Arthrex. See Appellants’ Br. at 36-37. But Arthrex was an appeal from an agency adjudication, which allowed the Supreme Court to remand to the Acting Director of the PTO to allow him to review decisions of Administrative Patent Judges (APJs). Arthrex, 141 S. Ct. at 1987-88 (plurality) (“[A] limited remand to the Director provides an adequate opportunity for review by a principal officer.”). This case was initially filed in federal district court, so it cannot be remanded to an agency official—and it certainly cannot be remanded to the Secretary with instructions to review the Task Force recommendations. This Court is reviewing a district court’s judgment, and it must direct entry of a judgment that awards relief authorized by the Declaratory Judgment Act, the APA, the All Writs Act, or the practice of equity courts.

The Supreme Court also claims a power to announce supreme law in its opinions, which binds all government actors. See Cooper v. Aaron, 358 U.S. 1, 18 (1958) (“[T]he interpretation of the [Constitution] enunciated by this Court . . . is the supreme law of the land, and Art. VI of the Constitution makes it of binding effect.”). So the Supreme Court may, simply by declaring it so in an opinion that receives five or more votes, purport to render a federal statutory constraint non-operative and confer new powers on agency officials. Id; Free Enterprise Fund, 561 U.S. at 509 (purporting to pronounce “removal restrictions . . . invalid”). A federal appellate court has no such power when reviewing a district-court judgment, and the judgment itself has no precedential weight in any forum. See Camreta v. Greene, 563 U.S. 692, 709 n.7 (2011). An opinion from this Court that claims to “sever” (i.e., cancel) 42 U.S.C. § 299b-4(a)(6) is not binding outside the Fifth Circuit, and if the Secretary purports to “override” a Task Force recommendation in reliance on that opinion he could be sued elsewhere and enjoined. So the defendants’ proposed remedy will not work unless and until the Supreme Court adopts it.

C. The Defendants’ Proposed Remedy Will Not Redress The Plaintiffs’ Article III Injuries

A final problem with the defendants’ remedy is that it will not redress the plaintiffs’ Article III injuries, which are caused by the Secretary’s enforcement of the preventive-care mandates, not by his failure to review or ratify them. ROA.225-231. A remedy that fails to redress the plaintiffs’ injuries is incompatible with Article III. See Steel Co. v. Citizens for a Better Environment, 523 U.S. 83, 107 (1998) (“Relief that does not remedy the injury suffered cannot bootstrap a plaintiff into federal court.”); Collins v. Mnuchin, 938 F.3d 553, 611 (5th Cir. 2019) (Oldham, J., concurring in part and dissenting in part) (“[O]ur Court does not have the power under Article III to order a remedy that does not redress Plaintiffs’ injuries.”).

V. THE DISTRICT COURT CORRECTLY VACATED THE UNLAWFUL AGENCY ACTIONS UNDER 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A)

The plaintiffs did not sue as class representatives, so the Court must decide whether they can obtain a universal remedy or whether the judgment must limit relief to the plaintiffs. In considering this question, the Court should distinguish three types of available remedies: (1) Declaratory relief; (2) A remedy that “holds unlawful and sets aside” agency action;²⁵ and (3) Injunctive relief. Each of these remedies is governed by different sources of law that define their permissible scope.

A. The Declaratory Judgment Act

A declaratory judgment is a creature of statute, and the scope of a declaratory remedy is described in 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a):

In a case of actual controversy within its jurisdiction, . . . any court of the United States . . . may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking such declaration

(Emphasis added). Courts rarely consider this statutory text, but it makes clear that a court may declare only: (1) the “rights and other legal relations”; (2) of an “interested party” seeking this declaration. It does not authorize declarations of law in the abstract.

Several implications follow. The first is that declaratory relief must describe the plaintiffs’ “rights and other legal relations,” rather than abstract pronouncements regarding a statute’s constitutionality. An announcement that “42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) violates the Appointments Clause” does not declare the “rights” or “legal relations” of the plaintiffs. The second implication is that courts may declare only the rights and legal relations of a “party” to the lawsuit. See David P. Currie, Misunderstanding Standing, 1981 Sup. Ct. Rev. 41, 45. Declaratory relief is always litigant-specific, because 28 U.S.C. § 2201 allows a “party” to obtain a declaration of its own “rights” and “legal relations” but no one else’s.

B. The Administrative Procedure Act

The APA authorizes courts to “hold unlawful and set aside” agency action. 5 U.S.C. § 706(2). This veto-like power enables the judiciary to formally revoke an agency’s rules, orders, findings, or conclusions—in the same way that an appellate court formally revokes and wipes away an erroneous trial-court judgment. See Data Marketing Partnership, LP v. United States Dep’t of Labor, 45 F.4th 846, 859 (5th Cir. 2022) (“§ 706 ‘... empowers courts to “set aside”—i.e., formally nullify and revoke—an unlawful agency action.’” (citation omitted)); Franciscan Alliance, Inc. v. Becerra, 47 F.4th 368, 374-75 (5th Cir. 2022) (“Vacatur is the only statutorily prescribed remedy for a successful APA challenge to a regulation.”).²⁶ This remedy is necessarily univer-

26. See Nicholas Bagley, Remedial Restraint in Administrative Law, 117 Colum. L. Rev. 253, 258 (2017); Thomas W. Merrill, Article III, Agency Adjudication, and the Origins of the Appellate Review Model of Administrative Law, 111 Colum. L. Rev. 939, 940 (2011); Mila Sohoni, The Power to Vacate a Rule, 88 Geo. Wash. L. Rev. 1121, 1126 (2020) (“[T]he APA allows universal vacatur of rules.”).

sal because the agency actions themselves are vacated—i.e., “set aside”—which provides relief that benefits non-parties to the lawsuit. See Data Marketing, 45 F.4th at 859; Franciscan Alliance, 47 F.4th at 374-75; supra note 26. The district correctly vacated the “agency actions” taken to implement preventive-care coverage mandates triggered by an “A” or “B” recommendation from the Task Force on after March 23, 2010. ROA.2131.

C. Injunctive Relief

The district court also properly enjoined the defendants from implementing the agency actions that it had “set aside.” Because this injunction is concomitant to the APA remedy, which formally revoked the contested agency actions, there is no cause for angst over the issuance of a universal injunction. See Franciscan Alliance, Inc. v. Burwell, 227 F. Supp. 3d 660, 695 (N.D. Tex. 2016) (“A nationwide injunction is appropriate when a party brings a facial challenge to agency action under the APA.” (citing authorities)). The plaintiffs would not be eligible for a universal remedy if they were only challenging the constitutionality of a statute. See Doran v. Salem Inn, Inc., 422 U.S. 922, 931 (1975) (“[N]either declaratory nor injunctive relief can directly interfere with enforcement of contested statutes or ordinances except with respect to the particular federal plaintiffs”). But a court that “sets aside” agency action is formally revoking and undoing the rule or order, and a universal remedy that restrains implementation of the vacated action is necessary to implement the command of section 706(2).

At least one commentator and three Supreme Court justices deny that the APA’s “set aside” language authorizes or requires universal remedies such as vacatur. See John Harrison, Section 706 of the Administrative Procedure Act Does Not Call for Universal Injunctions or Other Universal Remedies, 37 Yale J. On Reg. Bull. 37, 41 (2020); United States v. Texas, 143 S. Ct. 1964, 1981-86 (2023) (Gorsuch, J., concurring in the judgment); but see Sohoni, supra note 26 (responding to Harrison). But the law of this Court is otherwise,²⁷ and until this Court repudiates its views it cannot withhold a universal remedy on account of these criticisms.

D. The Defendants’ Criticisms Of The District Court’s Remedy Are Groundless

The defendants’ attacks on the district court’s remedy are without merit.

1. The Plaintiffs Are Entitled To An APA Remedy Regardless Of Whether They Specifically Requested It In Their Complaint

The defendants say that the plaintiffs did not “rais[e] an APA claim” in their complaint. See Appellants’ Br. at 45. But it does not matter whether the pleadings invoked the APA or requested an APA remedy. The court’s final judgment “should grant the relief to which each party is entitled, even if the party has not demanded that relief in its pleadings.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c); see also Citizens United v. FEC, 558 U.S. 310, 333 (2010) (considering the “facial validity” of a statute, even though a facial challenge was never brought);

27. Data Marketing, 45 F.4th at 859; Franciscan Alliance, 47 F.4th at 374-75.

Driggers v. Business Men’s Assurance Co. of America, 219 F.2d 292, 299 (5th Cir. 1955) (“[T]he final judgment should grant the relief to which plaintiff may prove himself entitled, even if he has not demanded such relief in his pleadings.”). And a catch-all request for “other and further relief as the Court may deem just, proper, and equitable” preserves claims or remedies that go unmentioned in the pleadings. See Whole Woman’s Health v. Hellerstedt, 136 S. Ct. 2292, 2307 (2016), overruled on other grounds by Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health Organization, 142 S. Ct. 2228 (2022); Sapp v. Renfro, 511 F.2d 172, 176, n.3 (5th Cir. 1975) (allowing claim for damages raised for first time on appeal given Rule 54(c) and the catchall prayer for relief); ROA.244 (demand for relief).

The plaintiffs’ challenge to the constitutionality of 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) necessarily encompasses a challenge to agency actions taken to implement the statutory command. When a court declares a statute unconstitutional, it enjoins enforcement of not only the statute but also agency rules and actions that implement the disapproved statutory provision. See Hellerstedt, 136 S. Ct. at 2319-20. The defendants note that the plaintiffs abandoned a claim that had attacked the Task Force recommendations for failure to use notice-and-comment procedures,²⁸ but that is irrelevant to whether the plaintiffs can obtain a remedy under section 706 in response to the claims on which they have prevailed.

28. Appellants’ Br. at 45.

The defendants complain that the district court’s judgment sweeps too far by vacating “any and all agency actions” taken to implement or enforce 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) in response to “A” or “B” Task Force recommendations that post-date the enactment of the ACA. ROA.2131. And they insist that the judgment should have carved out non-final agency actions, which are not subject to judicial review under 5 U.S.C. § 704, as well as agency actions that occurred outside the six-year statute of limitations. See Appellants’ Br. at 46. But the Task Force’s website shows that there were no “A” or “B” recommendations issued between March 23, 2010 (the date on which the ACA became law), and March 29, 2014 (six years before March 29, 2020, the date on which the plaintiffs filed suit). See [bit.ly/45kOsfl \[https://perma.cc/BEZ2-HSFQ\]](https://perma.cc/BEZ2-HSFQ) (last visited on August 7, 2023). The first post-ACA Task Force recommendation to receive an “A” or “B” grade pertains to breast-cancer screenings, and it was published on January 11, 2016. So it is inconceivable that any of the vacated agency actions occurred outside the six-year limitations period. We agree with the defendants that agency actions that pre-date March 29, 2014, should not be vacated under section 706, but they cannot fault the district court’s judgment when there was no possibility of a limitations defense.

We also agree with the defendants that only “final” agency action can be vacated under section 706. See 5 U.S.C. § 704 (“Agency action made reviewable by statute and final agency action for which there is no other adequate remedy in a court are subject to judicial review. A preliminary, procedural, or intermediate agency action or ruling not directly reviewable is subject to review on the review of the final agency action.”); Biden v. Texas, 142 S. Ct. 2528, 2544–45 (2022). The district-court judgment vacates “any and all agency actions,” which could be construed to encompass non-final action such as notices of proposed rulemaking. The Court can clarify that only “final” agency actions have been vacated, and it can instruct the district court on remand to modify section 3 of its judgment by inserting the word “final” between “any and all” and “agency action” in each of the two paragraphs. ROA.2131-2132.

The defendants also gesture toward the de facto officer doctrine and claim that courts “should avoid mass invalidation of past administrative actions based solely on a defect in appointment.” Appellants’ Br. at 46 (citing Buckley, 424 U.S. at 142). Yet recent decisions of the Supreme Court have made clear that past cases applying the de facto officer doctrine should be limited to their facts. See Ryder, 515 U.S. at 184 (“To the extent [Buckley and Connor v. Williams, 404 U.S. 549 (1972)] may be thought to have implicitly applied a form of the de facto officer doctrine, we are not inclined to extend them beyond their facts.”). In addition, the plaintiffs are not seeking to vacate the “A” or “B” ratings issued by the Task Force; they are merely seeking to vacate agency actions that implement or enforce preventive-care coverage mandates triggered by those ratings under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1). ROA.2060-2061. All of these agency actions were undertaken by constitutionally appointed officers. But they are “not in accordance with law” because the Task Force cannot exercise significant authority pursuant to the laws of the United States, and they must be vacated under the mandatory language of 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A). See Part V.D.2, infra.

2. 5 U.S.C. § 706(2) Compels Courts To “Set Aside”
(i.e., Vacate) Unlawful Agency Action Regardless of
The Balance Of Equities Or The Public Interest

The requirement of 5 U.S.C. § 706 is clear: The Court “shall” (not “may”) “hold unlawful and set aside” agency actions that are “not in accordance with law.” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A). Agency actions that implement the Task Force’s post-ACA preventive-care recommendations under 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1) are “not in accordance with law” because the Task Force was unconstitutionally appointed cannot wield “significant authority pursuant to the laws of the United States.”²⁹ So courts are obligated to “set aside” (i.e., vacate) these agency actions under section 706 and Rule 54(c)—without regard to the balance of equities or public interest.

The defendants argue that vacatur under section 706 is discretionary rather than mandatory,³⁰ and that courts should consider the equities and public interest before vacating unlawful agency actions. See Appellants’ Br. at 41-50. But that stance cannot be squared with the mandatory language of section 706(2)(A), nor can it be squared with this Court’s precedents that equate “set aside” with vacatur. See Data Marketing, 45 F.4th at 859; Francis-

29. Buckley, 424 U.S. at 126.

30. Appellants’ Br. at 45 n.5.

can Alliance, 47 F.4th at 374-75. The meaning of “set aside” in section 706 cannot mean “vacatur” only some of the time, or whenever the balance of equities or public interest favor a universal remedy. It either means vacatur (a universal remedy), or it means disregard (a case-specific remedy). This Court has already adopted the former interpretation of “set aside,” and its meaning cannot fluctuate between the views of this Court and the views of Professor Harrison based on policy considerations.

Neither Cargill v. Garland, 57 F.4th 447 (5th Cir. 2023) (en banc), nor Central & South West Services, Inc. v. EPA, 220 F.3d 683 (5th Cir. 2000), undermines the district court’s decision to vacate the disputed agency actions, nor do they give courts discretion in deciding whether to vacate unlawful agency action under section 706. Cargill merely remanded a remedial question without deciding it, while observing that “vacatur of an agency action is the default rule in this Circuit.” Cargill, 57 F.4th at 472 (plurality op.). Central & South West involved a one-off application of the controversial remand-without-vacatur maneuver,³¹ a tactic that should “rare[ly]” be employed. See Franciscan Alliance, 47 F.4th at 375 n.29 (“‘The ordinary practice is to vacate unlawful agency action. . . . In rare cases, however, we do not vacate the action but instead remand for the agency to correct its errors.’” (citation omitted)). The defendants are not requesting remand without vacatur.

31. See NRDC v. EPA, 489 F.3d 1250, 1262-64 (D.C. Cir. 2007) (one of Judge Randolph’s many opinions criticizing remand without vacatur).

The defendants are also wrong to accuse the district court of issuing a universal remedy “automatically” from its “finding of an Appointments Clause violation.” Appellants’ Br. at 41. The district court said its universal remedy was authorized only by the “set aside” language in section 706. ROA.2122-2130. None of the cases in the defendants’ brief that criticize universal remedies involved situations in which the APA authorized or required courts to “set aside” an agency action, and none of them considered the meaning of “set aside” in section 706(2)(A). See Appellants’ Br. at 41-42.

We agree with the defendants that when “the constitutionality of a federal statute is at issue, the usual remedy is to enjoin the enforcement of the statutory provision against the plaintiffs” only. See Appellants’ Br. at 41 (emphasis added). We also acknowledge that many district-court judges are too quick to issue universal remedies in response to constitutional violations. District-court judges sometimes act as though their pronouncements of unconstitutionality formally revoke the underlying statute—and issue “universal” remedies based on the idea that judicially disapproved statutes cease to exist and can no longer be enforced against anyone.³² This is a manifestation of the writ-of-erasure mindset, which is reinforced by the sloppy nomenclature that is too often used when describing the judicial power. See, e.g., Pool v. City of Houston, 978 F.3d 307, 309 (5th Cir. 2020) (“It is often said that courts ‘strike down’ laws when ruling them unconstitutional. That’s not quite right.”); NetChoice, 49 F.4th at 44 (“‘[C]ourts have no authority to strike down statutory text’” (citation omitted)). There are only three circumstances in which a court may award relief beyond the named parties: (1) When a litigant sues in a representative capacity;³³ (2) When relief extending beyond the named litigants is necessary to fully redress the plaintiffs’ injuries;³⁴ or (3) When a statute (such as the APA) authorizes or requires such a remedy.

Yet the district court’s judgment was careful to respect these limits on universal remedies. It limited its declaratory relief to the plaintiffs, as required by 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a). ROA.2132. And it issued universal relief only with respect to “agency actions” taken to implement Task Force “A” or “B” recommendations made on or after March 23, 2010. ROA.2131-2132. The judgment and opinion make clear that a universal remedy could issue only to the extent that section 706 authorizes or requires such relief. ROA.2122-2130. The only way to defeat the district court’s remedy is to reject the holdings of this Court that equate “set aside” with vacatur.

33. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.

34. See Professional Association of College Educators v. El Paso County Community College District, 730 F.2d 258, 273-74 (5th Cir. 1984) (“An injunction . . . is not necessarily made overbroad by extending benefit or protection to persons other than prevailing parties in the lawsuit—even if it is not a class action—if such breadth is necessary to give prevailing parties the relief to which they are entitled.”).

Finally, the defendants have not explained how plaintiff-specific relief could redress the injuries of the non-Braidwood plaintiffs. An injunction that merely restrains the defendants from enforcing section 300gg-13(a)(1) and its implementing agency actions against the plaintiffs does not redress the injuries of the plaintiffs seeking to purchase health insurance on the market, because it will not liberate or induce insurers to offer policies that exclude coverage of objectionable preventive care. So even if the district court had discretion to withhold a “vacatur” remedy, it was hardly an abuse of discretion to award such relief when a plaintiff-specific remedy fails to redress the asserted injuries.

VI. THE SECRETARY’S ATTEMPTED RATIFICATION OF THE ACIP RECOMMENDATIONS AND HRSA GUIDELINES DO NOT CURE THE APPOINTMENTS CLAUSE VIOLATIONS

The district court allowed the Secretary’s ratification memo to obviate any Appointments Clause problems with the ACIP recommendations and HRSA guidelines. ROA.1793-1797. The Court should reverse this holding.

The Secretary has no more authority to ratify or reject the ACIP recommendations and HRSA guidelines than it does the “A” or “B” ratings conferred by the Task Force. The district court thought the Secretary can “direct” the recommendations and guidelines of ACIP and HRSA, ROA.1779-1780, but the text of 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(2)-(4) cannot support this idea, as it gives ACIP and HRSA alone the authority to issue the “recommendations” and “guidelines” that bind private insurers. See Little Sisters of the Poor Saints Peter & Paul Home v. Pennsylvania, 140 S. Ct. 2367, 2381 (2020) (“By its terms, the ACA leaves the Guidelines' content to the exclusive discretion of HRSA." (emphasis added)). The judiciary cannot re-write the statute by transferring the prerogatives of ACIP and HRSA to the Secretary, or making their decisions defeasible by a principal officer or cabinet secretary. See Henry Schein, Inc. v. Archer & White Sales, Inc., 139 S. Ct. 524, 528 (2019) ("[W]e are not at liberty to rewrite the statute passed by Congress and signed by the President.").

The district court relied on 42 U.S.C. § 202, which says that the "Public Health Service . . . shall be administered by the Assistant Secretary for Health under the supervision and direction of the Secretary." But this statute does not compromise the independence of ACIP, HRSA, or the Task Force, and it does not put the Secretary in charge of their preventive-care coverage decisions. It merely places the Assistant Secretary for Health under the Secretary's "supervision" and "direction," while instructing the Assistant Secretary to "administer[]" the Public Health Service. See supra at 17-18. The power to "administer" does not include a prerogative to override ACIP or HRSA when 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1)-(4) makes their "recommendations" and "guidelines" final and conclusive regarding the preventive-care that private insurers must cover. The ACA also specifically addresses the Secretary's powers vis-à-vis these entities and allows him only to postpone the effective date of ACIP and HRSA's recommendations and guidelines, not to countermand or "direct" their decisions. See 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(b).

And even if the Secretary has authority to veto or "ratify" ACIP's recommendations or HRSA's guidelines, section 300gg-13(a)(2)-(4) still violates the Appointments Clause because it empowers ACIP and HRSA to dictate preventive care that private insurers must cover until the Secretary formally approves their decisions. That constitutes “significant authority pursuant to the laws of the United States,” even if it remains subject to reversal, because the power to impose preventive-care mandates on private insurers—even for a limited time—amounts to “significant authority” in and of itself. See Lucia, 138 S. Ct. at 2049 (administrative-law judges qualify as “officers of the United States,” even though their decisions are subject to review by the Commission itself). And the constitutional-avoidance canon is inapplicable when a litigant’s proposed interpretation of a statute continues to present constitutional questions for the courts to resolve. See Jennings v. Rodriguez, 138 S. Ct. 830, 836 (2018) (“Under the constitutional-avoidance canon, . . . a court may shun an interpretation that raises serious constitutional doubts and instead may adopt an alternative that avoids those problems.” (emphasis added)).

The Secretary’s ratification also cannot salvage the legality of past agency actions taken to implement ACIP recommendations and HRSA guidelines that were announced after March 23, 2010 (the date on which the ACA was signed). At most, the Secretary’s ratification clears the way for agency actions taken after January 21, 2022; it cannot retroactively authorize agency actions that pre-date ratification. See 5 U.S.C. § 551(4) (agency rules have only “future effect”). So even if one accepts ratification, the judgment should still vacate agency actions taken before January 21, 2022, to implement ACIP recommendations and HRSA guidelines issued after March 23, 2010, by unconstitutionally appointed officers.

Finally, the ratification document failed to go through notice-and-comment procedures and is arbitrary and capricious. See Part II.B, supra.

VII. THE PLAINTIFFS ARE PRESERVING THEIR NONDELEGATION CLAIM

The nondelegation challenge to 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(1)-(4) is foreclosed by Big Time Vapes, Inc. v. FDA, 963 F.3d 436 (5th Cir. 2020). ROA.1811-1812. The plaintiffs are preserving this claim for the Supreme Court, which suggested that section 300gg-13(a)(4) lacks the required intelligible principle. See Little Sisters, 140 S. Ct. at 2380-82.

CONCLUSION

The judgment should be reversed to the extent it rejected the Appointments Clause challenges to 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(2)-(4). The judgment should otherwise be affirmed.

Respectfully submitted.

Subchapter I. Selection Boards (Refs & Annos)

10 U.S.C.A. § 612

§ 612. Composition of selection boards

Effective: January 1, 2021

Currentness

(a)(1) Members of selection boards shall be appointed by the Secretary of the military department concerned in accordance with this section. A selection board shall consist of five or more officers of the same armed force as the officers under consideration by the board. Each member of a selection board (except as provided in paragraphs (2), (3), and (4)) shall be an officer on the active-duty list. Each member of a selection board must be serving in a grade higher than the grade of the officers under consideration by the board, except that no member of a board may be serving in a grade below major or lieutenant commander. The members of a selection board shall represent the diverse population of the armed force concerned to the extent practicable.

(2)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a selection board shall include at least one officer from each competitive category of officers to be considered by the board.

(B) A selection board need not include an officer from a competitive category to be considered by the board when there are no officers of that competitive category on the active-duty list in a grade higher than the grade of the officers to be considered by the board and eligible to serve on the board. However, in such a case the Secretary of the military department concerned, in his discretion, may appoint as a member of the board an officer of that competitive category who is not on the active-duty list from among officers of the same armed force as the officers under consideration by the board who hold a higher grade than the grade of the officers under consideration and who are retired officers, reserve officers serving on active duty but not on the active-duty list, or members of the Ready Reserve.

(3) When reserve officers of an armed force are to be considered by a selection board, the membership of the board shall include at least one reserve officer of that armed force on active duty (whether or not on the active-duty list). The actual number of reserve officers shall be determined by the Secretary of the military department concerned, in the Secretary's discretion. Notwithstanding the first sentence of this paragraph, in the case of a board which is considering officers in the grade of colonel or brigadier general or, in the case of officers of the Navy, captain or rear admiral (lower half), no reserve officer need be included if there are no reserve officers of that armed force on active duty in the next higher grade who are eligible to serve on the board.

(4) Except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3), if qualified officers on the active-duty list are not available in sufficient number to comprise a selection board, the Secretary of the military department concerned shall complete the membership of the board

App. 013

§ 612. Composition of selection boards, 10 USCA § 612

by appointing as members of the board officers who are members of the same armed force and hold a grade higher than the grade of the officers under consideration by the board and who are retired officers, reserve officers serving on active duty but not on the active-duty list, or members of the Ready Reserve.

(5) A retired general or flag officer who is on active duty for the purpose of serving on a selection board shall not, while so serving, be counted against any limitation on the number of general and flag officers who may be on active duty.

(b) No officer may be a member of two successive selection boards convened under section 611(a) of this title for the consideration of officers of the same competitive category and grade.

(c)(1) Each selection board convened under section 611(a) of this title that will consider an officer described in paragraph (2) shall include at least one officer designated by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff who is a joint qualified officer.

(2) Paragraph (1) applies with respect to an officer who--

(A) is serving on, or has served on, the Joint Staff; or

(B) is a joint qualified officer.

(3) The Secretary of Defense may waive the requirement in paragraph (1) in the case of--

(A) any selection board of the Marine Corps; or

(B) any selection board that is considering officers in specialties identified in paragraph (2) or (3) of section 619a(b) of this title.

(2) Task Force procedures

The Secretary shall convene meetings of the Task Force as appropriate to ensure that the list is produced and transmitted annually to the Congress as required by this subsection. If necessary to ensure transmittal of the list on a timely basis, the Task Force shall produce the list by a majority vote of those Task Force members who are present and voting; except that no coastal wetlands restoration project shall be placed on the list without the concurrence of the lead Task Force member that the project is cost effective and sound from an engineering perspective. Those projects which potentially impact navigation or flood control on the lower Mississippi River System shall be constructed consistent with section 3953 of this title.

(1) Plan preparation

The Task Force shall prepare a plan to identify coastal wetlands restoration projects, in order of priority, based on the cost-effectiveness of such projects in creating, restoring, protecting, or enhancing the long-term conservation of coastal wetlands, taking into account the quality of such coastal wetlands, with due allowance for small-scale projects necessary to demonstrate the use of new techniques or materials for coastal wetlands restoration. Such restoration plan shall be completed within three years from November 29, 1990.

(2) Purpose of the plan

§ 3952. Priority Louisiana coastal wetlands restoration projects, 16 USCA § 3952

The purpose of the restoration plan is to develop a comprehensive approach to restore and prevent the loss of, coastal wetlands in Louisiana. Such plan shall coordinate and integrate coastal wetlands restoration projects in a manner that will ensure the long-term conservation of the coastal wetlands of Louisiana.

(3) Integration of existing plans

In developing the restoration plan, the Task Force shall seek to integrate the “Louisiana Comprehensive Coastal Wetlands Feasibility Study” conducted by the Secretary of the Army and the “Coastal Wetlands Conservation and Restoration Plan” prepared by the State of Louisiana's Wetlands Conservation and Restoration Task Force.

Not less than three years after the completion and submission of the restoration plan required by this subsection and at least every three years thereafter, the Task Force shall provide a report to the Congress containing a scientific evaluation of the effectiveness of the coastal wetlands restoration projects carried out under the plan in creating, restoring, protecting and enhancing coastal wetlands in Louisiana.

(c) Coastal wetlands restoration project benefits

Where such a determination is required under applicable law, the net ecological, aesthetic, and cultural benefits, together with the economic benefits, shall be deemed to exceed the costs of any coastal wetlands restoration project within the State which the Task Force finds to contribute significantly to wetlands restoration.

(d) Consistency

(1) In implementing, maintaining, modifying, or rehabilitating navigation, flood control or irrigation projects, other than emergency actions, under other authorities, the Secretary, in consultation with the Director and the Administrator, shall ensure that such actions are consistent with the purposes of the restoration plan submitted pursuant to this section.

(2) At the request of the Governor of the State of Louisiana, the Secretary of Commerce shall approve the plan as an amendment to the State's coastal zone management program approved under section 1455 of this title.

§ 3952. Priority Louisiana coastal wetlands restoration projects, 16 USCA § 3952

The Secretary shall, with the funds made available in accordance with this chapter, allocate such funds among the members of the Task Force to carry out coastal wetlands restoration projects in accordance with the priorities set forth in the list transmitted in accordance with this section. The Secretary shall not fund a coastal wetlands restoration project unless that project is subject to such terms and conditions as necessary to ensure that wetlands restored, enhanced or managed through that project will be administered for the long-term conservation of such lands and waters and dependent fish and wildlife populations.

(f) Cost-sharing(1) Federal share

Amounts made available in accordance with section 3955 of this title to carry out coastal wetlands restoration projects under this chapter shall provide 75 percent of the cost of such projects.

(2) Federal share upon conservation plan approval

Notwithstanding the previous paragraph, if the State develops a Coastal Wetlands Conservation Plan pursuant to this chapter, and such conservation plan is approved pursuant to section 3953 of this title, amounts made available in accordance with section 3955 of this title for any coastal wetlands restoration project under this section shall be 85 percent of the cost of the project. In the event that the Secretary, the Director, and the Administrator jointly determine that the State is not taking reasonable steps to implement and administer a conservation plan developed and approved pursuant to this chapter, amounts made available in accordance with section 3955 of this title for any coastal wetlands restoration project shall revert to 75 percent of the cost of the project: Provided, however, that¹ such reversion to the lower cost share level shall not occur until the Governor has been provided notice of, and opportunity for hearing on, any such determination by the Secretary, the Director, and Administrator, and the State has been given ninety days from such notice or hearing to take corrective action.

(3) Form of State share

The share of the cost required of the State shall be from a non-Federal source. Such State share shall consist of a cash contribution of not less than 5 percent of the cost of the project. The balance of such State share may take the form of lands, easements, or right-of-way, or any other form of in-kind contribution determined to be appropriate by the lead Task Force member.

Such forms shall be produced, distributed, and processed by the Secretary, and no parent or student shall be charged a fee by the Secretary, a contractor, a third-party servicer or private software provider, or any other public or private entity for the collection, processing, or delivery of financial aid through the use of such forms. No data collected on a form for which a fee is charged shall be used to complete the form prescribed under this section, except that a Federal or State income tax form prepared by a paid income tax preparer or preparer service for the primary purpose of filing a Federal or State income tax return may be used to complete the form prescribed under this section.

(7) Restrictions on use of PIN

No person, commercial entity, or other entity may request, obtain, or utilize an applicant's personal identification number assigned under paragraph (3)(G) for purposes of submitting a form developed under this subsection on an applicant's behalf.

(8) Application processing cycle

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

(9) Early estimates

The Secretary shall continue to--

(B) permit applicants to update information submitted on forms described in this subsection, without needing to re-enter previously submitted information;

(C) develop a means to inform applicants, in the years prior to enrollment, of student aid options for individuals in similar financial situations;

(D) develop a means to provide a clear and conspicuous notice that the applicant's expected family contribution is subject to change and may not reflect the final expected family contribution used to determine Federal student financial aid award amounts under this subchapter; and

(E) consult with representatives of States, institutions of higher education, and other individuals with experience or expertise in student financial assistance application processes in making updates to forms used to provide early estimates under this paragraph.

(10) Distribution of data

Entities designated by institutions of higher education, guaranty agencies, or States to receive such data shall be subject to all the requirements of this section, unless such requirements are waived by the Secretary.

(11) Third party servicers and private software providers

To the extent practicable and in a timely manner, the Secretary shall provide, to private organizations and consortia that develop software used by institutions of higher education for the administration of funds under this subchapter, all the necessary specifications that the organizations and consortia must meet for the software the organizations and consortia develop, produce, and distribute (including any diskette, modem, or network communications) to be so used. The specifications shall contain record layouts for required data. The Secretary shall develop in advance of each processing cycle an annual schedule for providing such specifications. The Secretary, to the extent practicable, shall use multiple means of providing such specifications, including conferences and other meetings, outreach, and technical support mechanisms (such

Copies of all rules, regulations, guidelines, instructions, and application forms published or promulgated pursuant to this subchapter shall be provided to the authorizing committees at least 45 days prior to their effective date.

(c) Toll-free information

The Secretary shall contract for, or establish, and publicize a toll-free telephone service to provide timely and accurate information to the general public. The information provided shall include specific instructions on completing the application form for assistance under this subchapter. Such service shall also include a service accessible by telecommunications devices for the deaf (TDD's) and shall, in addition to the services provided for in the previous sentence, refer such students to the national clearinghouse on postsecondary education or other appropriate provider of technical assistance and information on postsecondary educational services for individuals with disabilities, including the National Technical Assistance Center under section 1140q of this title. The Secretary shall continue to implement, to the extent practicable, a toll-free telephone based system to permit applicants who meet the requirements of subsection \(b\) or \(c\) of section 1087ss of this title to submit an application over such system.

(d) Assistance in preparation of financial aid application(1) Preparation authorized

Notwithstanding any provision of this chapter, an applicant may use a preparer for consultative or preparation services for the completion of a form developed under subsection (a) if the preparer satisfies the requirements of this subsection.

(2) Preparer identification required

If an applicant uses a preparer for consultative or preparation services for the completion of a form developed under subsection (a), and for which a fee is charged, the preparer shall--

(A) include, at the time the form is submitted to the Department, the name, address or employer's address, social security number or employer identification number, and organizational affiliation of the preparer on the applicant's form; and

(3) Additional requirements

A preparer that provides consultative or preparation services pursuant to this subsection shall--

(B) include in any advertising clear and conspicuous information that the FAFSA and EZ FAFSA are free forms that may be completed without professional assistance via paper or electronic version of the forms that are provided by the Secretary;

(C) if advertising or providing any information on a website, or if providing services through a website, include on the website a link to the website that provides the electronic version of the forms developed under subsection (a); and

(D) not produce, use, or disseminate any other form for the purpose of applying for Federal student financial aid other than the form developed by the Secretary under subsection (a).

(4) Special rule

Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to limit preparers of the forms required under this subchapter that meet the requirements of this subsection from collecting source information from a student or parent, including Internal Revenue Service tax forms, in providing consultative and preparation services in completing the forms.

(e) Early application and estimated award demonstration program

(1) Purpose and objectives

The purpose of the demonstration program under this subsection is to measure the benefits, in terms of student aspirations and plans to attend an institution of higher education, and any adverse effects, in terms of program costs, integrity, distribution, and delivery of aid under this subchapter, of implementing an early application system for all dependent students that allows dependent students to apply for financial aid using information from two years prior to the year of enrollment. Additional objectives associated with implementation of the demonstration program are the following:

(A) To measure the feasibility of enabling dependent students to apply for Federal, State, and institutional financial aid in their junior year of secondary school, using information from two years prior to the year of enrollment, by completing any of the forms under this subsection.

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

(B) To identify whether receiving final financial aid award estimates not later than the fall of the senior year of secondary school provides students with additional time to compete for the limited resources available for State and institutional financial aid and positively impacts the college aspirations and plans of these students.

(C) To measure the impact of using income information from the years prior to enrollment on--

(i) eligibility for financial aid under this subchapter and for other State and institutional aid; and

(ii) the cost of financial aid programs under this subchapter.

(D) To effectively evaluate the benefits and adverse effects of the demonstration program on program costs, integrity, distribution, and delivery of financial aid.

(2) Program authorized

Not later than two years after August 14, 2008, the Secretary shall implement an early application demonstration program enabling dependent students who wish to participate in the program--

(A) to complete an application under this subsection during the academic year that is two years prior to the year such students plan to enroll in an institution of higher education; and

(B) based on the application described in subparagraph (A), to obtain, not later than one year prior to the year of the students' planned enrollment, information on eligibility for Federal Pell Grants, Federal student loans under this subchapter, and State and institutional financial aid for the student's first year of enrollment in the institution of higher education.

(3) Early application and estimated award

For all dependent students selected for participation in the demonstration program who submit a completed FAFSA, or, as appropriate, an EZ FAFSA, two years prior to the year such students plan to enroll in an institution of higher education, the Secretary shall, not later than one year prior to the year of such planned enrollment--

(A) provide each student who completes an early application with an estimated determination of such student's--

(i) expected family contribution for the first year of the student's enrollment in an institution of higher education; and

(ii) Federal Pell Grant award for the first such year, based on the Federal Pell Grant amount, determined under section 1070a\(b\)\(2\)\(A\) of this title, for which a student is eligible at the time of application; and

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

(B) remind the students of the need to update the students' information during the calendar year of enrollment using the expedited reapplication process provided for in subsection (a)(4)(A).

(4) Participants

The Secretary shall include as participants in the demonstration program--

(A) States selected through the application process described in paragraph (5);

(B) institutions of higher education within the selected States that are interested in participating in the demonstration program, and that can make estimates or commitments of institutional student financial aid, as appropriate, to students the year before the students' planned enrollment date; and

(C) secondary schools within the selected States that are interested in participating in the demonstration program, and that can commit resources to--

(i) advertising the availability of the program;

(iii) encouraging such students to apply; and

(iv) participating in the evaluation of the program.

(5) Applications

Each State that is interested in participating in the demonstration program shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such form, and containing such information as the Secretary shall require. The application shall include--

(A) information on the amount of the State's need-based student financial assistance available, and the eligibility criteria for receiving such assistance;

(B) a commitment to make, not later than the year before the dependent students participating in the demonstration program plan to enroll in an institution of higher education, an estimate of the award of State financial aid to such dependent students;

(C) a plan for recruiting institutions of higher education and secondary schools with different demographic characteristics to participate in the program;

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

(D) a plan for selecting institutions of higher education and secondary schools to participate in the program that--

(i) demonstrate a commitment to encouraging students to submit a FAFSA, or, as appropriate, an EZ FAFSA, two years before the students' planned date of enrollment in an institution of higher education;

(ii) serve different populations of students;

(iii) in the case of institutions of higher education--

(I) to the extent possible, are of varying types and sectors; and

(II) commit to making, not later than the year prior to the year that dependent students participating in the demonstration program plan to enroll in the institution--

(aa) estimated institutional awards to participating dependent students; and

(E) a commitment to participate in the evaluation conducted by the Secretary; and

(F) such other information as the Secretary may require.

(6) Special provisions

(A) Discretion of student financial aid administrators

A financial aid administrator at an institution of higher education participating in a demonstration program under this subsection may use the discretion provided under section 1087t of this title as necessary for students participating in the demonstration program.

(B) Waivers

The Secretary is authorized to waive, for an institution of higher education participating in the demonstration program, any requirements under this subchapter, or regulations prescribed under this subchapter, that will make the demonstration

App. 042

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

program unworkable, except that the Secretary shall not waive any provisions with respect to the maximum award amounts for grants and loans under this subchapter.

(7) Outreach

The Secretary shall make appropriate efforts to notify States of the demonstration program under this subsection. Upon determination of participating States, the Secretary shall continue to make efforts to notify institutions of higher education and dependent students within participating States of the opportunity to participate in the demonstration program and of the participation requirements.

(8) Evaluation

The Secretary shall conduct a rigorous evaluation of the demonstration program to measure the program's benefits and adverse effects, as the benefits and effects relate to the purpose and objectives of the program described in paragraph (1). In conducting the evaluation, the Secretary shall--

(A) determine whether receiving financial aid estimates one year prior to the year in which the student plans to enroll in an institution of higher education, has a positive impact on the higher education aspirations and plans of such student;

(B) measure the extent to which using a student's income information from the year that is two years prior to the student's planned enrollment date had an impact on the ability of States and institutions of higher education to make financial aid awards and commitments;

(C) determine what operational changes are required to implement the program on a larger scale;

(D) identify any changes to Federal law that are necessary to implement the program on a permanent basis;

(E) identify the benefits and adverse effects of providing early estimates on program costs, program operations, program integrity, award amounts, distribution, and delivery of aid; and

(F) examine the extent to which estimated awards differ from actual awards made to students participating in the program.

(9) Consultation

The Secretary shall consult, as appropriate, with the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance established under section 1098 of this title on the design, implementation, and evaluation of the demonstration program.

(f) Reduction of income and asset information to determine eligibility for student financial aid

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

(1) Continuation of current FAFSA simplification efforts

The Secretary shall continue to examine--

(A) how the Internal Revenue Service can provide to the Secretary income and other data needed to compute an expected family contribution for taxpayers and dependents of taxpayers, and when in the application cycle the data can be made available;

(B) whether data provided by the Internal Revenue Service can be used to--

(i) prepopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA with student and parent taxpayer data; or

(ii) generate an expected family contribution without additional action on the part of the student and taxpayer; and

(C) whether the data elements collected on the FAFSA that are needed to determine eligibility for student aid, or to administer the Federal student financial aid programs under this subchapter, but are not needed to compute an expected family contribution, such as information regarding the student's citizenship or permanent residency status, registration for selective service, or driver's license number, can be reduced without adverse effects.

(2) Report on FAFSA simplification efforts to date

Not later than 90 days after August 14, 2008, the Secretary shall provide a written report to the authorizing committees on the work the Department has done with the Secretary of the Treasury regarding--

(A) how the expected family contribution of a student can be calculated using substantially less income and asset information than was used on March 31, 2008;

(B) the extent to which the reduced income and asset information will result in a redistribution of Federal grants and subsidized loans under this subchapter, State aid, or institutional aid, or in a change in the composition of the group of recipients of such aid, and the amount of such redistribution;

(C) how the alternative approaches for calculating the expected family contribution will--

(i) rely mainly, in the case of students and parents who file income tax returns, on information available on the 1040, 1040EZ, and 1040A; and

(ii) include formulas for adjusting income or asset information to produce similar results to the existing approach with less data;

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

(D) how the Internal Revenue Service can provide to the Secretary of Education income and other data needed to compute an expected family contribution for taxpayers and dependents of taxpayers, and when in the application cycle the data can be made available;

(E) whether data provided by the Internal Revenue Service can be used to--

(i) repopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA with student and parent taxpayer data; or

(ii) generate an expected family contribution without additional action on the part of the student and taxpayer;

(F) the extent to which the use of income data from two years prior to a student's planned enrollment date will change the expected family contribution computed in accordance with part F, and potential adjustments to the need analysis formula that will minimize the change; and

(G) the extent to which the data elements collected on the FAFSA on March 31, 2008, that are needed to determine eligibility for student aid or to administer the Federal student financial aid programs, but are not needed to compute an expected family contribution, such as information regarding the student's citizenship or permanent residency status, registration for selective service, or driver's license number, can be reduced without adverse effects.

(3) Study

(A) Formation of study group

Not later than 90 days after August 14, 2008, the Comptroller General shall convene a study group the membership of which shall include the Secretary of Education, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, representatives of institutions of higher education with expertise in Federal and State financial aid assistance, State chief executive officers of higher education with a demonstrated commitment to simplifying the FAFSA, and such other individuals as the Comptroller General and the Secretary of Education may designate.

(B) Study required

The Comptroller General, in consultation with the study group convened under subparagraph (A) shall--

(i) review and build on the work of the Secretary of Education and the Secretary of the Treasury, and individuals with expertise in analysis of financial need, to assess alternative approaches for calculating the expected family contribution under the statutory need analysis formula in effect on the day before August 14, 2008, and under a new calculation that will use substantially less income and asset information than was used for the 2008-2009 FAFSA;

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

(ii) conduct an additional analysis if necessary; and

(iii) make recommendations to the authorizing committees.

(C) Objectives of study

The objectives of the study required under subparagraph (B) are--

(i) to determine methods to shorten the FAFSA and make the FAFSA easier and less time-consuming to complete, thereby increasing higher education access for low-income students;

(ii) to identify changes to the statutory need analysis formula that will be necessary to reduce the amount of financial information students and families need to provide to receive a determination of eligibility for student financial aid without causing significant redistribution of Federal grants and subsidized loans under this subchapter; and

(iii) to review State and institutional needs and uses for data collected on the FAFSA, and to determine the best means of addressing such needs in the case of modification of the FAFSA as described in clause (i), or modification of the need analysis formula as described in clause (ii).

(D) Required subjects of study

The study required under subparagraph (B) shall examine--

(i) with respect to simplification of the financial aid application process using the statutory requirements for need analysis--

(I) additional steps that can be taken to simplify the financial aid application process for students who (or, in the case of dependent students, whose parents) are not required to file a Federal income tax return for the prior taxable year;

(II) information on State use of information provided on the FAFSA, including--

(aa) whether a State uses, as of the time of the study, or can use, a student's expected family contribution based on data from two years prior to the student's planned enrollment date;

(bb) the extent to which States and institutions will accept the data provided by the Internal Revenue Service to prepopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA to determine the distribution of State and institutional student financial aid funds;

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

- (cc) what data are used by States, as of the time of the study, to determine eligibility for State student financial aid, and whether the data are used for merit- or need-based aid;

- (dd) whether State data are required by State law, State regulations, or policy directives; and

- (ee) the extent to which any State-specific information requirements can be met by completion of a State application linked to the electronic version of the FAFSA; and

- (III) information on institutional needs, including the extent to which institutions of higher education are already using supplemental forms to collect additional data from students and their families to determine eligibility for institutional funds; and

- (ii) ways to reduce the amount of financial information students and families need to provide to receive a determination of eligibility for student financial aid, taking into account--
 - (I) the amount of redistribution of Federal grants and subsidized loans under this subchapter caused by such a reduction, and the benefits to be gained by having an application process that will be easier for students and their families;

 - (II) students and families who do not file income tax returns;

 - (III) the extent to which the full array of income and asset information collected on the FAFSA, as of the time of the study, plays an important role in the awarding of need-based State financial aid, and whether the State can use an expected family contribution generated by the FAFSA, instead of income and asset information or a calculation with reduced data elements, to support determinations of eligibility for such State aid programs and, if not, what additional information will be needed or what changes to the FAFSA will be required; and

 - (IV) information on institutional needs, including the extent to which institutions of higher education are already using supplemental forms to collect additional data from students and their families to determine eligibility for institutional funds; and

 - (V) changes to this chapter or other laws that will be required to implement a modified need analysis system.

(4) Consultation

The Secretary shall consult with the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance established under section 1098 of this title as appropriate in carrying out this subsection.

§ 1090. Forms and regulations, 20 USCA § 1090

(5) Reports

(A) Reports on study

The Secretary shall prepare and submit to the authorizing committees--

(i) not later than one year after August 14, 2008, an interim report on the progress of the study required under paragraph (3) that includes any preliminary recommendations by the study group established under such paragraph; and

(ii) not later than two years after August 14, 2008, a final report on the results of the study required under paragraph (3) that includes recommendations by the study group established under such paragraph.

(B) Reports on FAFSA simplification efforts

The Secretary shall report to the authorizing committees, from time to time, on the progress of the simplification efforts under this subsection.

(g) Addressing the digital divide

The Secretary shall utilize savings accrued by moving more applicants to the electronic version of the forms described in subsection (a)(3) to improve access to the electronic version of the forms described in such subsection for applicants meeting the requirements of subsection \(b\) or \(c\) of section 1087ss of this title.

(h) Adjustments

The Secretary shall disclose, on the form notifying a student of the student's expected family contribution, that the student may, on a case-by-case basis, qualify for an adjustment under section 1087tt of this title to the cost of attendance or the values of the data items required to calculate the expected contribution for the student or parent. Such disclosure shall specify--

(1) the special circumstances under which a student or family member may qualify for such adjustment; and

(2) additional information regarding the steps a student or family member may take in order to seek an adjustment under section 1087tt of this title.

Subchapter I. Selection Boards (Refs & Annos)

10 U.S.C.A. § 612

§ 612. Composition of selection boards

Effective: January 1, 2021

Currentness

(a)(1) Members of selection boards shall be appointed by the Secretary of the military department concerned in accordance with this section. A selection board shall consist of five or more officers of the same armed force as the officers under consideration by the board. Each member of a selection board (except as provided in paragraphs (2), (3), and (4)) shall be an officer on the active-duty list. Each member of a selection board must be serving in a grade higher than the grade of the officers under consideration by the board, except that no member of a board may be serving in a grade below major or lieutenant commander. The members of a selection board shall represent the diverse population of the armed force concerned to the extent practicable.

(2)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a selection board shall include at least one officer from each competitive category of officers to be considered by the board.

(B) A selection board need not include an officer from a competitive category to be considered by the board when there are no officers of that competitive category on the active-duty list in a grade higher than the grade of the officers to be considered by the board and eligible to serve on the board. However, in such a case the Secretary of the military department concerned, in his discretion, may appoint as a member of the board an officer of that competitive category who is not on the active-duty list from among officers of the same armed force as the officers under consideration by the board who hold a higher grade than the grade of the officers under consideration and who are retired officers, reserve officers serving on active duty but not on the active-duty list, or members of the Ready Reserve.

(3) When reserve officers of an armed force are to be considered by a selection board, the membership of the board shall include at least one reserve officer of that armed force on active duty (whether or not on the active-duty list). The actual number of reserve officers shall be determined by the Secretary of the military department concerned, in the Secretary's discretion. Notwithstanding the first sentence of this paragraph, in the case of a board which is considering officers in the grade of colonel or brigadier general or, in the case of officers of the Navy, captain or rear admiral (lower half), no reserve officer need be included if there are no reserve officers of that armed force on active duty in the next higher grade who are eligible to serve on the board.

(4) Except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3), if qualified officers on the active-duty list are not available in sufficient number to comprise a selection board, the Secretary of the military department concerned shall complete the membership of the board

by appointing as members of the board officers who are members of the same armed force and hold a grade higher than the grade of the officers under consideration by the board and who are retired officers, reserve officers serving on active duty but not on the active-duty list, or members of the Ready Reserve.

(5) A retired general or flag officer who is on active duty for the purpose of serving on a selection board shall not, while so serving, be counted against any limitation on the number of general and flag officers who may be on active duty.

(b) No officer may be a member of two successive selection boards convened under section 611(a) of this title for the consideration of officers of the same competitive category and grade.

(c)(1) Each selection board convened under section 611(a) of this title that will consider an officer described in paragraph (2) shall include at least one officer designated by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff who is a joint qualified officer.

(2) Paragraph (1) applies with respect to an officer who--

(A) is serving on, or has served on, the Joint Staff; or

(B) is a joint qualified officer.

(3) The Secretary of Defense may waive the requirement in paragraph (1) in the case of--

(A) any selection board of the Marine Corps; or

(B) any selection board that is considering officers in specialties identified in paragraph (2) or (3) of section 619a(b) of this title.
